INSULL TELLS STORY OF FIVE TRANSIT BILLS

He Says His Lawyer Drafted Them.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Who were the drafters and who are the sponsors and promoters of the five bills pending in the legislature to confer powers upon Chicago with reference to transportation? Who suggested that peculiar provision on home rule? An effort was made by THE TRIBUNE to find the answers yesterday, in view of no information heretofore having been made public on the queer home rule provision and the fact that sundry intimations and insinuations have been printed regarding the backers of the bills.

It had been rumored that Samuel Insull had a leading part in the proceedings, concerning which nothing of value reached public prints, and so he was sought as the best authority from which to get answers.

Bills Drawn by Insull Lawyer.

"Who drew those bills?" was the first question asked Mr. Insull yesterday morning.

"Gilbert E. Porter of the firm of Insull, Lincoln & Beale," Mr. Insull replied. "Mr. Porter is the senior counsel of Mr. Insull."

"Who suggested and who determined what should be placed in the bills?" Mr. Insull was asked.

"Let it be distinctly understood," Mr. Insull replied, "that these are company bills. They are sponsored by the companies. They represent the ideas of the companies on the sort of enabling legislation which should be enacted prior to the preparation of a franchise ordinance and an agreement between the companies on the features of a consolidation."

"Isn't there already an agreement between the companies on the proposed merger?" Mr. Insull was asked.

"On the financial features?" Mr. Insull queried.

"Yes," was the reply, and then Mr. Insull's answer was:

"Absolutely, no. No agreement whatsoever."

"What other features of a consolidation are there to be considered?" he was asked.

"None of any importance," he replied.

Denies Values Are Fixed.

"Haven't you agreed on the approximate values of individual properties, at which the properties shall be put together?" was the next question.

"No, there is no foundation for that. Undoubtedly individuals have made figures of their own. That is natural, but figures have even been considered in any meeting of conference," Mr. Insull retorted.

"Getting back to the sponsors of the bills, what particular individuals decided what should be placed in the bills?" Mr. Insull was asked.

"When the bills were drafted," Mr. Insull replied, "they were submitted to a meeting over which I presided and there were present Messrs. Dagby, Blair, Shinn, Budd, Porter and some of his partners whom I do not now recall. Mr. Schuyler, Mr. Lucey and Mr. Richardson."

Who's Who Among Conference.

Leonard A. Busby is president of the south side surface lines, Chicago City Railway company, Calumet & South Chicago and the Southern Street Railway companies.

Harry A. Blair is president of the Chicago Railways company, north and west side surface lines and one of the members of that company.

B. E. Bunney is chairman of one of the principal holdovers' committee of the south side lines.

William J. Budd is president of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, the elevated roads.

Mr. Porter already has been identified as Schuyler is of the law firm of Schuyler and Weinfeld in Chicago.

Another lawyer of the Insull group, formerly was attorney general of Illinois when E. F. Dunne was governor.

Mr. Richardson is vice president and general manager of the Chicago General Lines.

Refers to Series of Meetings.

"Each one of these was not present at each meeting," Mr. Insull continued, "but each named was present at some of the meetings."

Charles Thompson in his statement to the council local transportation committee last Wednesday said that he had conferred with some of the men named on page 2, column 2.

DORAN NAMED COMMISSIONER OF PROHIBITION

New Yorker Will Be Asst. Secretary.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Resignation of L. C. Andrews as assistant secretary of the treasury and appointment of Dr. James M. Doran as commissioner of prohibition were announced by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today as chief features of a new shakeup in the prohibition enforcement machinery.

Dr. Doran, heretofore chief chemist in the prohibition service, supplants Roy A. Haynes, for several years commissioner of prohibition, then stripped of all authority by Mr. Andrews and recently temporarily restored to power as acting commissioner of the new bureau of prohibition. The Anti-Saloon league made an unsuccessful effort to obtain Mr. Haynes' appointment for the permanent position.

Andrews Retires Aug. 1.

The resignation of Mr. Andrews, which was unexpected, is effective Aug. 1. Secretary Mellon announced that he has recommended to President Coolidge the appointment of Seymour Lowman, former lieutenant governor of New York, to succeed him.

It was indicated by Mr. Mellon that while the new assistant secretary of the treasury will have supervisory authority over the bureau of prohibition, as well as over the bureau of customs and the coast guard, he will not have such broad powers as Mr. Andrews.

Dr. Doran, it was stated, will have full authority as prohibition commissioner, although general determination of policies will remain in the hands of the secretary of the treasury.

The date of Haynes' retirement was not indicated. In fact, Haynes was not mentioned in the lengthy statement.

Appointments Please Andrews.

Mr. Andrews expressed his approval of both appointments. He was especially pleased over the elevation of Dr. Doran, who has been in the government service as a chemist for twenty years and has been in charge of industrial alcohol activities.

In his letter of resignation, Mr. Andrews said he believed he had practically completed the reorganization work which he was asked to undertake, and said that he intended to go into business.

While Mr. Andrews had intended to resign whenever a favorable opportunity arose, there is an impression that he had not expected to quit at this time until within the last day or two.

Retirement Was Desired.

It is understood that the administration regarded it as desirable that Mr. Andrews leave now in order that the shelving of Mr. Haynes might not be regarded too much as a victory for Mr. Andrews and a slap at the Anti-Saloon league. Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, after leaving the White House a few days ago, suggested that Mr. Lowman would make a good assistant secretary of the treasury.

While Secretary Mellon refused to select the league's candidate for commissioner of prohibition, Dr. Doran is regarded as a dry and in complete sympathy with law enforcement. With Mr. Andrews out, Dr. Doran is certain to have greater authority than would have been the case if the former had remained in his position.

Son of M. E. Pastor.

Dr. Doran was born in Grand Forks, N. D., on Aug. 17, 1885, and is the son of a Methodist minister. He was graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1907 and entered the government service as a chemist that year. He became head of the industrial alcohol and chemical division in 1920 and in 1924 was made chief of the technical division of the internal revenue bureau.

Mr. Lowman lives in Elmira, N. Y., and has been known as an active dry. The rejection of Mr. Haynes was due to the opposition of many different groups. Not only were the wets constantly ridiculing his enforcement efforts, but legitimate industries using industrial alcohol have repeatedly complained of drastic regulations which he imposed when he was prohibition commissioner.

There also was a split in the dry ranks on the matter, the Methodist board of temperance and public morals having favored the selection of E. C. Yellowley, Chicago administrator, for the commissionership.

CARTOONS OF THE DAY

War of Capias vs. Writ Ends in Armistice

Three deputy sheriffs from Bloomington, Ill., with shiny pistols in their hands, fought a bloodless and indecisive battle last night against five men and two women in a jewelry shop at 4546 Broadway to determine whether a capias for arrest legally outranks a prospective writ of habeas corpus.

The central figure in the struggle was David Blumenfeld, who fights and runs his jewelry business at a net weight of 115 pounds. The deputies wanted him on an indictment charging that he helped two other men rob the Bank of Chicago, Ill., of $184,000, of which it is alleged he kept all but $24,000.

While the trouble was in progress, with Blumenfeld's wife and a second woman engaged in the business of scratching the face of Deputy Lloyd Nelson, the rumor spread along the sidewalks of the busy Wilson avenue section that anybody who wanted to could go and look on while three bold robbers stuck up a gem emporium. At least a thousand accepted the invitation and plans were laid to charge in and take the deputies when a riot police station arrived.

That ended the physical battle, but the legal tangle presented by Blumenfeld and his young wife Judy Barry, who had been arrested by the police, was not solved. The legal snarl was put up to Chief of Police Michael Hughes and Deputy Detective Chief Michael Grady. They decided to hold Blumenfeld all night, take him and the deputies before Judge Fisher tomorrow and ask him please to explain the relative values of writs and capias, thus preventing any more Wilson avenue riots.

ACQUIT YOUTH WHO KILLED FOR HONOR OF SISTER

Joseph Costello, 23, of 536 West 51st street, who shot and killed Jerry Collins, 31, for betrayal of his 19 year old sister, Mary Costello, was freed last night by a jury in the Criminal court before Judge John J. Sullivan.

As the jury foreman read the verdict of not guilty the defendant's mother, Mrs. Mary Belle Costello, his sisters, Mary and Nora, and Thomas Costello, 23, his brother, wept for joy as they crowded around him.

Costello thanked the jurors individually. The jury had deliberated about five and a half hours.

"Get me into the shop," yelled

Toiler Pleads for School to Dignify Labor

In an extemporaneous talk, so convincing and to the point that copies of it were ordered published and sent to the schools as an example of the argument, Charles H. Sand, a carpenter, yesterday asked the building committee of the board of education to build a new trade extension school in connection with the proposed new Lane Technical High school.

Dan Cleary of the Electrical Workers' union and Walter Collins, representing the Electrical Contractors' association, seconded Mr. Sand's petition.

"Union men and employers may disagree occasionally in the matter of wages or hours of work, but we are one in advocating more training for young apprentices and journeymen in the building trades," Mr. Sand said.

Pictures Recent Changes.

"Before the war none of us wanted our children to enter the trades. Anything but that. It was felt that there was some stigma connected with being a laborer."

"But all that has changed. Our people are proud of their life work. They enjoy higher wages and better working conditions. Steadily increasing numbers of children are taking up their fathers' trades."

"There is a future for skilled workmen, but success depends much on training. In the old days if a man knew how to saw a two-by-four and pitch a roof he was a carpenter. But we have passed out of the cottage era into an age of complicated skyscrapers that demand of workmen the utmost in skill and precision. Workmen without training are out of luck."

Employers' Approval Cited.

"That is where the schools come in. More than 3,000 apprentices now attend the trade extension school at Lane one day a week. With greater facilities that number would be doubled within two years. Employers, realizing the value of the training, pay an estimated $250,000 annually for the one day a week of school."

The committee, impressed by the concerted petition from employers and workmen alike, took the matter under consideration.

Lindbergh's Story for The Tribune

When next heard from, Capt. Lindbergh will write the story of his great exploit especially for readers of The Tribune and for readers of the New York Times and certain other allied newspapers. This story will appear in Chicago exclusively in The Tribune.

Lindbergh's Endurance Is Chief Factor

It is not so much the danger of mechanical mishap that might stop Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight across the Atlantic, in the opinion of Chicago airmen interviewed yesterday. It is more the element of human weakness that might bring him down short of Paris.

For "Lucky" Lindbergh, speeding eastward in his plane, the "Spirit of St. Louis"—if, indeed, he is still aloft at this hour—must sit for from 33 to 40 hours in one position in a roaring, vibrating cabin, with one hand glued to his control stick, his feet holding the rudder bar and his eyes constantly staring at a dozen gauges and instruments on the dashboard before him.

Signals That Mean Danger.

Any one of them might signal danger that would drop him into the sea, and the signal must be caught at once.

His pals—and all of the veterans of the air seem to be Lindbergh's pals—believe he will win the way to Paris. Luck is a big factor, they say, and they tell of the string of fortunate breaks that have attended the flying Missourian's career.

Lindbergh's ship is a Ryan monoplane with a Wright White radial motor. Tony Yackey, president of the Yackey Aircraft company, out at Maywood, has a plane almost like it, and yesterday Yackey told of the feat which Lindbergh has set out to accomplish.

Instruments That Guide Him.

Among the instruments before the aviator, and why they are useful, as well as what might happen should they fail, were the following, described by Mr. Yackey:

The altimeter, recording the altitude at which the plane is flying. Especially at night must this be watched, lest the ship fall imperceptibly and dash into the waves.

The compass, the needle of which Lindbergh must keep poised constantly over the same point. Should this compass go out of order the pilot might as well have lost his rudder, and he might fly till his gasoline supply was exhausted without sighting land. And other Chicago flyers laid a great deal of emphasis on the compass, for they said an airplane compass, subjected to the tremendous vibration of the craft, is far less accurate than a ship's compass.

Oil Gauges Important.

The oil gauge, which shows how much oil is in the reservoir. Should it drop to zero, indicating the oil had been drained, the motor would be heated until it swelled and jammed.

The oil pressure gauge, showing that the oil pump is supplying the viscous fluid to the motor.

A thermometer, indicating the heat of the oil in the motor.

A turn-and-bank indicator, telling whether the plane is upright or tilted. Flyer Yackey said that with Lindbergh in a closed cabin he might be flying vertically and still not realize it, due to the great pressure and speed. Of course, a plane flown vertically, with one wing up and the other down, would fall rapidly.

A tachometer, recording the motor revolutions per minute. When it falls there's trouble aboard, most often in the gasoline line.

An air speed indicator, showing the speed of the plane.

SHIP REPORTS SIGHTING FLYER 200 MILES OUT

Strong Winds Aid Daring Aviator.

BULLETIN.

New York, May 21.—The Independent Wireless company here announced this morning that one of their offices in Ireland had received a report from a vessel that Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh's plane had been sighted 200 miles west of the Irish coast. The report said that Lindbergh had been sighted at 6:30 a. m., New York daylight saving time, or 5:30 a. m. eastern standard time. The message was reported to have been relayed to the Western Union and then to the New York office of the Independent Wireless company.

BULLETIN.

ST. JOHNS, N. B., May 21.—Strong westerly breezes, approaching gale force, were blowing here late tonight, and marine authorities declared they should be of great assistance to Capt. Lindbergh.

[Late dispatches said that the westerly winds should add 20 miles an hour to Lindbergh's normal 100 mile speed and, barring accidents, might bring him into Paris some hours earlier than the scheduled time of 7 p. m. Saturday, Chicago time.]

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, May 20.—[9 p. m.]—Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, who waddled into the air in his airplane, "Spirit of St. Louis," at Roosevelt field, New York, at 7:52 a. m. today, flew the 1,200 miles to St. Johns in 11 hours 37 minutes and without stopping sped eastward out over the Atlantic.

He now is in the most treacherous part of his 3,400 mile nonstop path to Paris, the fog hung Grand Banks. Beyond the Grand Banks, however, perhaps about midnight, in that lonely part of the sea, he will clear the fog, may even have the pale light of the moon on the hungry swells of the ocean.

Ireland His Next Landfall.

By morning, if all goes well on his thin metallic mount, he will be in mid-Atlantic, where probably will be fought out the issue between his physical endurance and the strength of his machine and the elements. His next landfall is to be the southwestern corner of Ireland, then Lands End, England, the Channel, Paris.

Capt. Lindbergh's trip from Roosevelt field seems to have been more uneventful than his usual air mail trips between Chicago and St. Louis. After he cleared the rain and fog hanging around the New York City district, he was sighted about 9:40 a. m. at Bryantville, near Brooklyn, Mass.

Sighted Over Nova Scotia.

Mists over the rest of Massachusetts seem to have concealed him as he raced out over the Bay of Fundy. At 12:25 p. m. he was sighted at Meteghan, near Digby, the famous summer resort of Nova Scotia. An hour later he was sighted at Milford, near Halifax, capital of Nova Scotia.

Capt. Lindbergh now was nearing his second water jump. He crossed the Gut of Canso at Milgrave at 3 p. m. saw a vast fog bank coming in from the Atlantic over the Nova Scotia coast in the direction of Louisbourg, veered a bit to the northwest and at Main Adieu, Cape Breton island, left the Nova Scotia peninsula for the water hop to Newfoundland. The conflicting currents of the ocean and of the air turn this region into a great fog and mist factory the year round. The aviator negotiated it with accuracy, arriving almost to the minute, at 8:15 Atlantic daylight time (8:15 Chicago time), on his schedule at the capital of Newfoundland.

FLYING ON SCHEDULE

(Copyright, 1927, by The New York Times.)

New York, May 20.—[Special.]—Out over the North Atlantic "dum" Lindbergh, the brilliant young pilot from St. Louis, who hopped off from Roosevelt field at 7:52 o'clock, is flying all alone in his silver monoplane. When he was last reported at St.

John's Newfoundland, he was keeping as closely to his schedule as an express train, at a speed of about 100 miles an hour, and flying his course as straight as a bowling pin.

If he kept at that speed he should arrive over Paris at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, Paris time (7 p. m. Saturday, Chicago time).

The weather map tonight, however, indicated Lindbergh might even get there sooner. The gods which have smiled on him so far promise him favorable winds for most of the flight over the open sea.

At the southern tip of Newfoundland a twenty mile following wind was reported, which, without increasing his engine speed, would raise his speed to 130 miles an hour. The weather map indicated he would get better than an even break on the wind, which would slightly increase his actual speed.

When Lindbergh took off he carried between 445 and 450 gallons of gasoline, according to the men who filled his tanks. That would give him a normal radius of about 4,000 miles under perfect conditions in still air, and the distance to Paris is 3,600 miles. But engine experts thought Lindbergh burned a lot more than the normal ten gallons of gas an hour during the first few hours of the flight in carrying the heavy load. Even if he burned fifteen gallons an hour and made the flight at an average speed of 100 miles an hour he would have enough fuel to get him to Paris. So the odds with him tonight looked good, barring engine trouble.

The first long leg of his journey was the 1,100 mile flight to St. John's, Newfoundland, where he made a layover to the land and started on his 1,900 mile flight across the open sea.

Must Travel by Compass.

For the rest of his trip, until he sights Ireland, he will be traveling by compass alone, but as the compass variations are small, from two to four degrees only, he is not worried. He will have only about four hours of darkness on his rapid flight eastward. In the latitude in which he is now flying the night does not settle down until after 9 o'clock and light comes again very early in the morning. There are probably not more than six hours of complete darkness at this time of year, and as Lindbergh is traveling fast against the sun he should be able to cut down the five hours' difference in sun time to such an extent that he may gain two more hours of daylight.

Lindbergh is following the Great Circle route exactly, a route which, despite the fact that it is an arc of the earth's surface and therefore a curve, is the straightest line between New York and Paris.

It is not probable that Lindbergh can be reported by any ship until he reaches a point between 35 and 38 west longitude, because no steamship lines cross his course before then. He would be about eight or nine hours out from land then.

Can He Keep Awake?

There were some aviation experts tonight who professed to see another and almost greater danger to the intrepid Lindbergh than that of a forced descent in the Atlantic. This was whether he would be able to keep awake to complete his journey, for it was learned that last night he had only two hours' sleep.

This means that if Lindbergh lands in Paris he will have had only two hours' sleep out of the preceding sixty-four hours. There were several experts who questioned whether this was possible for a human being to endure, especially under the extraordinary conditions of strain the flyer must face.

Aside from the question of sleep, Lindbergh faces the important problem of food. He will subsist on emergency rations of dried beef, which contains salt; hardtack, which includes salt and lime, with chocolate, and albumen (white of eggs) for dessert, and he will also have a small amount of caffeine as a sweet. The flyer is carrying fifty-six ounces of this food in lead sealed tins, and estimates he will eat eight ounces a day.

Flyer's Take-off Like Drama.

Lindbergh's take-off was dramatic. A sluggish gray monoplane lurched its way down Roosevelt field this morning at 7:15 o'clock, slowly gathering momentum. Inside sat a tall young man, eyes glued to an instrument board or darting ahead for swift glances at

Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh, former Chicago-St. Louis air mail pilot, is over the Atlantic on his way to Paris. He left Roosevelt field, N. Y., at 7:38 a. m. yesterday and made the first 1,100 miles of the 3,600 mile trip in 11 hours 57 minutes.

Lindbergh should have been in mid-ocean about sunrise, between 3 and 4 o'clock in the latitude of his course, with about sixteen hours' flying ahead of him, to land in Paris within his thirty-six hour schedule. During the night he will have had the advantage of a full moon, as he would fly above any fog banks he might encounter.

the runway, his face drawn with the intensity of his purpose.

Death lay but a few seconds ahead of him if his skill failed or his courage faltered. For moments as the heavy plane rose from the ground, dropped down, staggered again into the air and fell, he gambled for his life against a hazard which had already killed four men.

And then slowly, so slowly that those watching it stood fascinated, as if by his indomitable will alone, the young pilot lifted his plane into the air. It dipped and then rose with renewed speed, climbing heavily but steadily toward the distant trees.

The spirit of unconquerable youth had won, and "Slim" Lindbergh was on his way to Paris.

All the romance which has surrounded this boy since his meteoric flight here from the Pacific coast a week ago reached its climax in this takeoff. The uncertainty of it, the frightful disaster which threatened him, the quick recoveries which showed a cool, keen mind fighting for the mastery of his ship made veteran pilots gaze in fascination.

"God be with him," exclaimed Commander Richard E. Byrd fervently, when at last it seemed that Lindbergh was safely on his way.

Had Won Hearts of All.

The boyish, smiling lad, with the quiet confidence of bravery and belief in his own ability, had won the hearts of every one who came near him. Until two weeks ago he was hardly considered a factor in the race to be first through the air to Paris, that long, treacherous flight of 3,600 miles. And then he came on with the speed of the wind, making only one stop between the Pacific coast and New York, and while rival camps squabbled over money or worked through long, tedious tests, Lindbergh rolled his plane out in the gray dawn and got away, all alone.

When Lindbergh made his decision to start just before midnight on Thursday it seemed the height of folly. Heavy fog settled over Roosevelt field under inky black skies, which dripped slow drops of rain. It was dismal and threatening. But the young pilot who has guided his temerity with a keen and thoughtful mind, saw in the late weather reports the possibility that the skies might clear to the north. All he wanted was one look at Newfoundland before he left the land for his long, weary flight across the sea, which had already claimed Nungesser and Goll, the French flyers.

The huge hangar in which his plane was housed was closed to every one except the mechanics who went over the plane with zealous care, and partly filled the huge gasoline tank. Lindbergh, after a parting word with them, went to the Garden City hotel at midnight, for a brief moment of sleep. He lay down with orders that he be called at 2:15 in the morning, but before 2 o'clock he was downstairs.

Hundreds Gather in Rain.

While he had been resting later weather reports indicated that the fog was lifting all along the coast, although it was depressingly wet at the field. The clouds had opened and poured down a steady rain, which left puddles in which shone the glare of many lights. Through a small opening in the hangar door the silvery seat and warmed the motor.

Lindbergh settled back in his seat and beckoned to Edward J. Mulligan, field engineer for the Wright company which made his motor, the same 200 horsepower motor used by Byrd and the Bellanca. Incidentally his load today, 5,200 pounds, was the heaviest ever lifted by a 200 horsepower engine.

"How is it?" asked the young pilot of Mulligan.

"She sounds good to me," replied the mechanic.

"Well, then, I might as well go," said the cool-eyed youngster.

The blocks were pulled from beneath the wheels, the motor roared, and the heavy plane lumbered ahead. The field was wet and the wheels sank in deeply.

Still the motor roared and he lurched onward, hitting more rough spots, and still the plane did not get up flying speed. He had passed the point of safety, the point where he could stop his motor and try over again. Now he must either lift the plane or pile up in a gully at the end of the runway which he was approaching more and more rapidly.

The plane left the ground, sailed a little farther, and came down. It did not have flying speed yet, and the end of the runway was just ahead of him. Commander Byrd, standing in front of his big machine, Bert Acosta in the cockpit, others near the end of the runway, looked on in fearful fascination.

The boy had to make or die.

It did not seem possible that he could do so, and then at the last moment the plane began to go up. The wheels of the plane cleared by a bare ten feet a tractor which lay directly in his path. A gully was ahead into which he might have plunged but which he left safely below. Over the telephone lines he passed with a scant twenty feet to spare.

And then, very gradually, but surely, the wide silver wings lifted, toward the skyline. A pale sky showed between them and the green line beneath.

A soft glow came above the clouds, the first of the sun breaking through. Far off above the trees the silver wing dipped and was gone.

U. S. GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE HUSTON CHARGES

Land Bank Case Involves Millions, It Is Said.

Toledo, O., May 20.—(Special.)—Grand charges said to involve millions of dollars, which have been brought against Guy H. Houston, president of the Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank and affiliated with similar institutions, probably will be investigated by the federal grand jury here when it convenes in June, Assistant United States Attorney Harry G. Levy said today.

Houston, who was arrested and taken from the Twentieth Century Limited here last night by a deputy United States marshal, left here immediately after being arraigned before United States Commissioner F. W. Gaines and after depositing a bond of $25,000 to assure his appearance at the preliminary hearing in June. It is believed Houston resumed his journey to New York, interrupted by his arrest here.

Indicted with Brother.

Houston was arrested in Toledo, it is said, because of the large amount of stock in his company held by residents of northwestern Ohio. The banker and his brother, John Houston, are under indictment in Minnesota for alleged violations of the national banking laws and the postal statutes. The indictments were returned in January.

The offenses charged to Houston in the warrant sworn to by Postoffice Inspector E. R. Cockrane, under which he was arrested here, include fraudulent representation of the purpose of organization of a number of farm loan companies in which he was interested.

U. S. to Overhaul Land Banks.

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(Special.)—Reorganization of joint stock land banks, now in progress under the direction of the newly reorganized federal farm loan board, is expected, according to its members, to restore public confidence in these institutions.

The arrest of Guy Houston, president of the Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank, is one of the results of the investigation by the department of justice with the cooperation of the treasury department. Officials of several of the joint stock land banks were accused by the treasury department of mismanagement. Under the reorganization plans, it is asserted, the banks heretofore followed will be done away with.

Eugene Meyer, now head of the farm loan board, is expected by the administration to inaugurate a system by which the joint stock land banks will be subjected to closer supervision. Legislation to bring this about was urged by the treasury in the last session of congress, but it failed of passage.

TRoubles OF LAND BANKS.

The action of the federal government against Guy Houston, president of the Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank, recalls other and recent troubles that have befallen other similar agencies.

These troubles are partly traceable to agricultural depression and the decline in land values, but judgment in the making of farm loans, and lack of proper supervision on the part of the federal farm loan board. The work-

JUDGE F. S. WILSON LEADS BAR VOTE ON JUDICIAL CANDIDATES

(The Tribune will present, from day to day, until the judicial election June 6, sketches of the candidates for the Circuit and Superior courts.)

FRANCIS S. WILSON—Sitting judge. Democrat renominated on the coalition ticket.

His standing among lawyers during his seven years as a Circuit court judge was attested in the Chicago Bar association primary in which he ran first among the thirty-two candidates, polling more votes than any other sitting judge.

Judge Wilson is 55 years old, is married and has two children. He lives at 4441 Woodlawn avenue. He was born in Youngstown, O., descendant of a family which numbered many judges and lawyers among its members. Graduated from Western Reserve university, where he was a football player, in 1890, he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1896. He came to Chicago in 1897, was a candidate for the municipal court in 1906, county attorney in 1911-1913, and was elected to the Circuit court bench in 1920.

He served during the war as chairman of the legal advisory board, 17th division, and holds the title of major in the Officers' Reserve corps. He has spent most of his time on the bench in hearing chancery cases, one of the most difficult branches of a jurist's work.

ings of the land banks and their difficulties were explained last night by a Chicago banker who is an authority on the subject.

"The federal land banks and the joint stock land banks were agencies designed by the government to facilitate the granting of credit to the farmers," he said. "The country banker cannot tie up his assets by extending long term loans on land, but he takes an application from a farmer for a loan and turns it over to a land bank. Both the bank and a federal appraiser check the value of the mortgaged property."

How Banks Operate.

"The bank makes the loan and prepares the mortgage. At the same time it sends the farmer's application to the federal farm loan board in Washington. The federal board stamps its approval on the application and returns it. Then the land bank deposits the mortgage with the regional federal registrar, who issues to the bank an equal amount of bonds. The land bank indorses these bonds and sells them to investors. Being in effect a government security, these bonds are tax exempt."

"The troubles of the land banks are due to the agricultural depression and improper management and supervision. The land banks have been conducted, in several cases, by men who were not good mortgage bankers. Such bankers were so eager to sell their stock to investors that they gave dividends were paid and proper reserves were not set up. Bad loans were made and when they had to be foreclosed the bank's assets were frozen."

COALITION OPENS WAR ON FOES IN JUDICIAL RACE

Files Petition Seeking to Bar Independents.

Campaign managers of the judicial coalition forces yesterday filed objections before County Clerk Robert M. Swetzel to the candidacies of all independent nominees in the June judicial election. It was contended that none but the names of the twenty-one coalition candidates should be placed on the ballots.

This action was seen as a result of the Chicago Bar association primary, in which 3,000 lawyers indicated by their votes a disapproval of the political leaders' action in leaving three sitting judges off the coalition ticket. Early in the campaign, there had been rumors that the coalition men would object to the independent petitions, but this plan, according to reports, was later discarded.

Attack Legality of Petitions.

Yesterday, for the first time, the regular-party heads expressed fear that the coalition slate would be beaten into by the three sitting judges who are running independently. So it was decided to attack the legality of the independent petitions. The coalition slate is composed of seventeen sitting judges and three lawyers to fill twenty circuit court vacancies and a fourth lawyer to fill the one vacancy in the Superior court.

Judges Charles M. Thomson, Frank Johnston Jr. and Oscar M. Morrison, the three independent candidates, termed the new move cheap politics and said they would fight the objections at a hearing before Mr. Swetzel to be held early next week.

"Our petitions are perfectly legal," declared Judge Thomson. "This latest move of the political bosses is an insult to the people. They would offer to the voters only twenty-one candidates to fill twenty-one vacancies. Two votes cast would elect the entire Circuit court judiciary if this scheme goes through. But it will not go through. The law is very clear on the subject."

Filed by Three Taxpayers.

The objections were filed by Attorney Joseph Lustfield in behalf of Edwin B. Banner, Earl M. Jones and Benjamin Zink, who identify themselves as taxpayers and voters. They refused to admit they were acting under the supervision of the coalition forces, although the petitions are directed against all candidates except those on the coalition ticket.

Several reasons are advanced in the documents filed before County Clerk Swetzel in favor of the theory that the independent nominations were illegal. The main objection, it was

Navy's Dire Need of Cruisers, Lesson from Sea Maneuvers

BY JOHN STEELE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Newport, R. I., May 20.—(Special.)—As I came ashore today from one of Uncle Sam's most modern battleships, on which I had been a guest for six days, I had a striking example of the enormous changes in the American navy within the memory of officers still serving.

I left the battleship California in the admiral's barge and passed the old frigate Constellation which was authorized by an act of congress signed by George Washington and actually commissioned in 1797. Notwithstanding this, Admiral Hughes of the fleet to which the California is attached and Rear Admiral Pringle both served on the Constellation as midshipmen on their first cruises.

Looking at the Constellation, it was impossible to avoid thinking what an old rope hauling sailor would say if he were suddenly brought back and placed aboard the great electrically worked machine which I had just left, where one man in a foretop or on the bridge, by moving a few dials and pointers, steers, controls, and fights a ship.

Navy War College Meets Today.

The Atlantic battle fleet maneuvers now are ended and tomorrow the officers of the army and navy who have taken part will assemble in the navy war college here to listen and take part in a criticism of the operations. This meeting is open only to officers of the two services, as it is expected some highly confidential matters will be discussed, and it is hoped some lessons were learned which it is impolitic to divulge to possible enemies.

Both the army and navy, however, wish it emphasized that there will be no decision. No one has won and no one has lost.

The defense forces of the United States have worked out a problem set down in advance and the lessons learned are to be applied to national defense.

In the fleet there are all sorts of rumors that the attempted landing failed and that theoretically some of the fleet ships were wiped out. We heard this morning, for instance, that the airplane carrier Langley was torpedoed and sunk. We also heard we had lost some cruisers. This loss was entirely constructive, for we had only one cruiser to lose.

Need of Cruisers Made Clear.

Incidentally, one lesson emphasized and reinforced by the working out of this problem is the crying need of the American navy for cruisers. The fleet is a crippled, incomplete thing without them. It had one and the only other available was with the defending force. All the rest of the ten cruisers we possess are on foreign service.

Incidentally, the British fleet has forty cruisers. With a fleet of twelve magnificent modern battleships, as good as any in the world, we should have at least eight, preferably twelve, cruisers. Without them the fleet is blind and unprotected.

Destroyers, which used to protect the main fleet are too light and slow and too lightly armed for real war conditions. The fleet also is short of destroyer leaders.

Officers and men who are equal to any in technical skill, courage, and morale, are being asked to perform an impossible task because they are not given the tools with which to work.

CONFESSION HITS HIGHER-UPS IN EDITOR'S KILLING

Can'ton, O., May 20.—(Special.)—Two former high police officials of Canton today were named as the men who worked out the details of the murder of Don R. Mellett, crusading editor, here on July 15, 1925.

This information was given to detectives by Floyd H. Streitenberger, a former city detective recently sentenced to life imprisonment for his part in the murder.

Indictments Expected.

The grand jury has been called and will hear Streitenberger's story Monday morning. Two indictments against the former police officials are expected to follow the hearing.

In his confession he said that the two officials worked out details of the murder months before Pat McDermott, Pennsylvania gunman, was sent to Mellett's home to shoot down the editor as he was putting his car in the garage. McDermott is now serving a life term in the penitentiary.

Planned to Kill Gunman.

He said details of an alibi for the officials himself and Ben Rudner and Louis Maser, underworld characters, now in the penitentiary, were worked out later at Massillon. At that time, he declared, Maser was delegated to go to Cleveland to kill McDermott, to prevent him "squawking" in event of his capture. Maser went on his sinister errand, but failed to find the gunman.

The two officers, who were ousted shortly after the murder, have long been under suspicion.

A Sunday Shock for Kevins Senior

"I got a shock in church today," Kevins Senior remarked after his first Sunday service in the church near their new home in the western suburbs.

"Lands! How?" demanded Mother Kevins.

"When Reverend Hart came up to shake hands I thought he was coming to ask for contributions. I can't tell you my joy at the way folks there welcomed us just for ourselves. Some of the men also invited me to a Men's Club Meeting."

"Father, there's nothing in the world like this atmosphere for bringing up the children with right practice rather than preaching," Mother Kevins beamed back. "And they like it, too. ## U. S. GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE HUSTON CHARGES

Land Bank Case Involves Millions, It Is Said.

Toledo, O., May 20.—(Special.)—Grand charges said to involve millions of dollars, which have been brought against Guy Huston, president of the Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank and affiliated with similar institutions, probably will be investigated by the federal grand jury here when it convenes in June, Assistant United States Attorney Harry G. Levy said today.

Huston, who was arrested and taken from the Twentieth Century Limited here last night by a deputy United States marshal, left here immediately after being arraigned before United States Commissioner F. W. Gaines and after depositing a bond of $25,000 to assure his appearance at the preliminary hearing in June. It is believed Huston resumed his journey to New York, interrupted by his arrest here.

Indicted with Brother.

Huston was arrested in Toledo, it is said, because of the large amount of stock in his company held by residents of northwestern Ohio. The banker and his brother, John Huston, are under indictments in Minnesota for alleged violations of the national banking laws and the postal statutes. The indictments were returned in January.

The officers charged to Huston in the warrant were by Postoffice Inspector E. R. Shreve, under which he was arrested here, include fraudulent representation of the purpose of organization of a number of farm loan companies in which he was interested.

U. S. to Overhaul Land Banks.

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(Special.)—Reorganization of joint stock land banks, now in progress under the direction of the newly reorganizing federal farm loan board, is expected, according to its members, to require public confidence in these law.

The arrest of Guy F. Huston, president of the Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank, is one of the results of an investigation by the department of justice with the cooperation of the treasury department. Officials of several of the joint stock land banks were accused by the treasury department of mismanagement. Under the reorganization plans, it is asserted that practices heretofore followed will be done away with.

JUDGE F. S. WILSON LEADS BAR VOTE ON JUDICIAL CANDIDATES

(The Tribune will present, from day to day, until the judicial election June 6, sketches of the candidates for the Circuit and Superior courts.)

FRANCIS S. WILSON—Sitting Judge. Democrat renominated on the coalition ticket.

His standing among lawyers during his seven years as a Circuit court judge was attested by the Chicago Bar association primary in which he ran first among the thirty-two candidates, polling more votes than any other sitting judge.

Judge Wilson is 45 years old, is married and has two children. He lives at 4641 Woodlawn avenue. He was born in Youngstown, O., descended from a family which numbered many judges and lawyers among its members. Graduated from Western Reserve university, where he was a football player, in 1890, he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1894. He came to Chicago in 1897, was a candidate for the municipal court in 1906, county attorney in 1911-1912, and was elected to the Circuit court bench in 1916.

He served during the war as chairman of the legal advisory board, 17th division, and holds the title of major in the Officers' Reserve corps. He has spent most of his time on the bench in hearing chancery cases, one of the most difficult branches of a jurist's work.

Indignities of the land banks and their difficulties were explained last night by a Chicago banker who is an authority on the subject.

"The federal land banks and the joint stock land banks were agencies designed by the government to facilitate the granting of credit to the farmers," he said. "The country banker cannot tie up his assets by extending long term loans on land, but he takes an application from a farmer for a loan and turns it over to a land bank. Both the bank and a federal appraiser check the value of the mortgaged property."

How Banks Operate.

"The bank makes the loan and prepares the mortgage. At the same time it sends the farmer's application to the federal farm loan board in Washington. The federal board stamps its approval on the application and returns it. Then the land bank deposits the mortgage with the regional federal registrar, who issues to the bank an equal amount of bonds. The land bank indorses these bonds and sells them to investors. Being backed by a government security, these bonds are tax exempt."

"The troubles of the land banks are due to the agricultural depression and improper management and supervision. The land banks have been conducted, in several cases, by men who were not good mortgage bankers. Such bankers were so eager to sell their stock to investors that expensive dividends were paid and proper reserves were not set up. Bad loans were made and when they had to be foreclosed the bank's assets were frozen."

COALITION OPENS WAR ON FOES IN JUDICIAL RACE

Files Petition Seeking to Bar Independents.

Campaign managers of the judicial coalition forces yesterday filed objections before County Clerk Robert M. Switzer to the candidacies of all independent nominees in the June judicial election. It was contended that none but the names of the twenty-one coalition candidates should be placed on the ballots.

This action was seen as a result of the Chicago Bar association primary, in which 3,000 lawyers indicated by their votes a disapproval of the political leaders' action in leaving three sitting judges off the coalition ticket. Early in the campaign, there had been rumors that the coalition men would object to the independent petitions, but this plan, according to reports, was later discarded.

Attack Legality of Petitions. Yesterday, for the first time, the regular party heads expressed fear that the coalition slate would be broken into by the three sitting judges who are running independently. So it was decided to attack the legality of the independent petitions. The coalition slate is composed of seventeen sitting judges and three lawyers to fill twenty circuit court vacancies and a fourth lawyer to fill the one vacancy in the Superior court.

Judges Charles M. Thomson, Frank Johnston Jr. and Oscar M. Morrison, the three independent candidates, termed the new move cheap politics and said they would fight the objections at a hearing before Mr. Switzer to be held early next week.

"Our petitions are perfectly legal," declared Judge Thomson. "This latest move of the political bosses is an insult to the people. They would offer to the voters only twenty-one candidates to fill twenty-one vacancies. Two votes cast would elect the entire Circuit court judiciary if this scheme goes through. But it will not go through. The law is very clear on the subject."

Filed by Three Taxpayers.

The objections were filed by Attorney Joseph Lundfield in behalf of Edwin B. Banner, Earl M. Jones and Benjamin Zintak, who identify themselves as taxpayers and voters. They refused to admit they were acting under the supervision of the coalition forces, although the petitions are directed against all candidates except those on the coalition ticket.

Several reasons are advanced in the documents filed before County Clerk Switzer in favor of the theory that the independent nominations were illegal. The main objection, it was

Navy's Dire Need of Cruisers, Lesson from Sea Maneuvers

BY JOHN STEELE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Newport, R. I., May 20.—(Special.)

—As I came ashore today from one of Uncle Sam's most modern battleships, on which I had been a guest for six days, I had a striking example of the enormous changes in the American navy within the memory of old timers still serving.

I left the battleship California in the admiral's barge and passed the old frigate Constellation which was authorized by an act of congress signed by George Washington and actually commissioned in 1797. Notwithstanding this, Admiral Hughes of the fleet to which the California is attached and Rear Admiral Pringle both served on the Constellation as midshipmen on their first cruise.

Looking at the Constellation, it was impossible not to think what an old rope hauling sailor would say if he were suddenly brought back and placed aboard the great electrically worked machine which I had just left where one man in a foretop or on the bridge, by moving a few dials and pointers, steers, controls, and fights a ship.

Navy War College Meets Today.

The Atlantic battle fleet maneuvers now are ended and tomorrow the fleet will be disbanded. The fleet has taken part in a series of operations. This meeting is open only to officers of the two services, as it is expected some highly confidential matters will be discussed, and it is hoped some lessons were learned which it is impolitic to divulge to possible enemies.

Both the army and navy, however, wish it emphasized that there will be no decision. No one has won and no one has lost.

The defense forces of the United States have worked out a problem set down in advance and the lessons learned are to be applied to national defense.

In the fleet there are all sorts of rumors that the attempted landing of the fleet is a complete thing without them. It had one and the only other available was with the defending forces. All the rest of the ten cruises we possess are on foreign service.

Incidentally, the British fleet has forty cruisers. With a fleet of twelve magnificent modern battleships, as good as any in the world, we should have at least eight, preferably twelve, cruisers. Without them the fleet is blind and unprotected.

Destroyers, which used to protect the main fleet are too light and slow and too lightly armed for real war conditions. The fleet also is short of destroyer leaders.

Officers and men who are equal to any in technical skill, courage, and morale, are being asked to perform an impossible task because they are not given the tools with which to work.

Against the petitions of the non-coalition party and the Lawyers' Association of Illinois, which filed two full tickets in the name of the Republican and Democratic parties, other objections were raised. It was charged that there were false affidavits attached to the petitions.

U. S. SHIP REACHES SHANGHAI WITH 600 MORE TROOPS

SHANGHAI, China, May 20.—The United States transport Chaumont arrived at Shanghai this afternoon from Manila, carrying 550 marines and one company of marine engineers, making a total of 600, commanded by Col. Harry Lay. In addition, the Chaumont carried 300 motorized self gun sufficient for a battalion of artillery, and one platoon of five armoured cars. There are now 6,600 American troops here.

According to the vernacular papers, Dr. C. C. Wu, foreign minister of the Nanking government, has instructed Quo Tai-chai, the nationalist foreign commissioner here, to lodge a strong protest with the American consular authorities over the bombardment of the Kiangyin forts by American gunboats.

CONFESSION HITS HIGHER-UPS IN EDITOR'S KILLING

Canton, O., May 20.—(Special.)

Two former high police officials of Canton today were named as the men who worked out the details of the murder of Don R. Mallett, crusading editor, here on July 16, 1926.

This information was given to detectives by Floyd E. Stralinger, a former city detective recently sentenced to life imprisonment for his part in the murder.

Indictments Expected. The grand jury has been called and will hear Stralinger's story Monday morning. Two indictments against the former police officials are expected to follow the hearing.

In his confession he said that the two officials worked out details of the murder months before Pat McDermott, Pennsylvania gunman, was sent to Mallett's home to shoot down the editor as he was putting his car in the garage. McDermott is now serving a life term in the penitentiary.

Planned to Kill Gunman.

He said details of an alibi for the officials himself and Ben Rudner and Louis Maser, underworld characters, now in the penitentiary, were worked out later at Massillon. At that time, he declared, Maser was delegated to go to Cleveland to kill McDermott, to prevent him "squawking" in event of his capture. Maser went on his sinister errand, but failed to find the gunman.

The two officers, who were ousted shortly after the murder, have long been under suspicion.

WOMAN SLAYER'S 4 KIDS ARE NEWS TO THE NEIGHBORS

Three of Them Borrowed for Trial, It's Said.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Frank Tom, murder: sentenced to the penitentiary for life by Judge John J. Sullivan.
Henry H. Scofield, obtaining money by false pretenses: sentenced to 2 years in the Reformatory by Judge William J. Landrum.
Joseph Cavanaugh and Louis Costello, robbery: each sentenced to 10 years to life in the penitentiary by Judge Richard Hughes.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
Mrs. Catherine Casler, the obscure and fat Indiana farm lady, who made the newspaper headlines yesterday when she was sentenced to be hanged for her share in the murder, Dec. 6, 1924, of William Lindstrom, spent a good portion of yesterday patterning platitudes about "rather die than have my children say their mother's in jail."

The logic of that statement wasn't especially good, and perhaps the actual facts of it will turn out to be equally faulty.

For it looks as if Catherine's fourfold motherhood alibi is only about 25 per cent valid.

Humor
In other words, it is rumored about that Edward, 16, the oldest of the quartet of children about whom Mrs. Casler talked so often during the progress of her trial, is the only one who really belongs to her. The other three, June, 4; Roger, 9; and Joseph, 12, are, it seems pretty well established, merely bewildered but acquiescent stage properties which the defendant introduced as borrowed drama personae for the effect it might have, but didn't, on the twelve men in the jury box.

The first charge of borrowed babies was made by Mrs. Lillian Fraser, who whispered to the girls over in the county jail that Mrs. Casler's sorrow over her three small children were "all the bunk"; that the three weren't even adopted, but must have been borrowed.

It's News to the Neighbors.
Mrs. Fraser, however, was hardly an unprejudiced witness, for the dead Lindstrom had been her paramour, and it was her testimony which did much to send Mrs. Casler to the gallows.

But further, and more impersonal announcements carried the same testimony. Out in Hebron, Ind., where the Caslers lived until last November, there was a neighbor, C. K. Hobbs, who had lived near the Caslers.

"Why, no," Mr. Hobbs said last night, "I never in all that time ever saw any young children around the house, and I certainly would have seen them if they had been there. Edward I remember well; a nice boy, too. But those other children, they're new to me, and to all the neighbors."

Mrs. Casler herself sought to spike this rumor by asking a few questions of her own:

"Who said they weren't my children?" and the like.

Still smiling that smile that is mostly a smirk, this lady sat in Warden E. J. Fogarty's office yesterday with Macon Adelaide Knapp and chatted pleasantly on lots of subjects.

For instance, she doesn't think too "death penalty is a nice law to have on the books." And she wouldn't want even her worst enemy to hang.

40 Girls Lived in King Ben's "Shiloh" House for Years

St. Joseph, Mich., May 20.—(Special.)—Five days of court proceedings in one of the most amazing cases in the history of the country were completed before Judge Louis H. Feed in Berrien county courthouse today.

Yet little more than a start had been made in the suit through which the state of Michigan seeks to dissolve the religious cult of the Israelite House of David as a public nuisance and a menace to the morals of the community.

Litigation Almost Unique.

For the magnitude and multitude of the offenses charged in the bill of complaint, directed principally against Benjamin Franklin Purnell, founder and head of the colony, for the number of witnesses, most of whom are former members who have turned upon the man they once accepted as super-natural, for the distance these have traveled to take the witness stand, and for the amount of the funds and property involved, the present litigation is almost unique.

The present legal battle has been brewing for more than twenty years, and has had scores of preliminaries in that time, but before many bars of justice, but none on the scale to which the state has resorted in an effort to "wipe out this cancer in the body politic of our state," as special prosecutor George E. Nichols of Ionia phrased it in his opening argument.

An unofficial estimate of the probable cost to the state of the actions that have been started against this colony since its founding was made yesterday at $200,000, inclusive of the current trial.

Turn Over Their Property.

Except for that, this case has evolved itself into a procession of men and women to the stand, where the men tell of having turned over their property to the common treasury for the understanding that they became part owners of the colony's resources, in common with the other members, later to leave, invariably after signing away all rights to any claims against the cult, and generally with train fare as their only funds.

On this testimony the state bases its claim of fraudulent accumulation of property.

The women and girl witnesses have a different and a sorer tale to tell, a tale that strains credulity, but which attorneys for the state have every confidence they will be able to prove. It concerns a situation equaled only by the stories of the licentiousness of French courts under the Louises and without the exotic backgrounds history establishes for those monarchs.

Lived Under "Virgin Law."

It is, briefly, to the effect that Benjamin Purnell, posing as a super-human and claiming titles, among others, of "The Younger Brother of the Lord, the Prince of Peace, the Angel Gabriel," lived for years surrounded by as many as forty young girls at a time, whom he compelled to intimacy with him and bound to secrecy. They were the daughters, the wives and the sisters of the men members, none of whom were allowed anything approaching a more than friendly attitude with any woman member, under the so-called "virgin law."

For two days, one of these girls, Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, of New York, then known as Dolly Smith, has been on the stand.

Michael Dies in Prison.

It is her testimony and that of scores of other girls, by which the state hopes to convict Benjamin Purnell, precisely as his predecessor, the notorious "Prince Michael" Mills, of Detroit, was convicted years ago. Mills died in the state prison after a similar exposure of the Detroit cult.

When court opened this afternoon Judge Feed ordered the courtroom cleared of all persons under twenty-one years of age. Dolly Wheeler was testifying.

Under the questioning of attorneys for this side, this pretty, 17-year-old young woman has related a story that has not yet conflicted in a single detail, major or minor. She is bringing to bear against Purnell an intelligence and a personality that is anything but mediocre, and that stood her in good stead when, firm in her belief in the supernatural qualities of the religious cult she now claims Benjamin to be, she gathered into his fold converts and properties as a preacher of his creed.

Although she is making an unusual witness, as to clarity and memory, and her manner is convincing, she is regarded of less importance than Mrs. Esther Hanel, who will take the stand when the hearing is resumed next Thursday morning.

It was Esther Hanel, acting as confidential agent for Benjamin, who handled much of the business transacted at the colony during her nearly 20 years' residence there. It was she who arranged some of the group marriages that the state charges were held to conceal the true state of affairs with regard to Purnell's relations with the girls. It was Esther who made long trips to confer with possible converts, particularly when they were women.

One Convert Had $30,000.

One of these trips, it is said, took her to England, where she "converted" a woman whose estate approximated $30,000.

Dolly Wheeler's testimony today covered the incidents of mock trials held by Benjamin when official investigations of the colony were in progress, his relations with her and with other girls living in the building called Shiloh, her preaching tours with her husband, her marriage in one of the group ceremonies and the circumstances of her forsaking the Israelite creed.

DRAFT BILLS TO INCREASE PARKS' BONDING POWER

Commissioners of Lincoln and west park yesterday prepared to draft bills increasing their bonding power to be submitted to a referendum vote June 6. A bill authorizing Lincoln park to issue bonds not exceeding $4,000,000 and another enabling the west park to incur $10,000,000 additional indebtedness were signed by Gov. Len Small yesterday.

Widening Jackson boulevard from the Union station west to Garfield park, the park's share in the construction of a bridge over the drainage canal at Western avenue, removing the kinks in Washington boulevard, and making a one way boulevard of Warren avenue from Garfield park to Ogden avenue, are proposed by west park commissioners. They will meet this morning to draft an ordinance. Dr. John Dill Robertson, president, said yesterday.

Lincoln park will ask for only $2,000,000 this year, Supt. Emil A. W. Johnson said. The money, if voted, will be used to complete the extension of Lincoln park to Devon avenue.

RECKS MISSING FATHER OF 4.

RAYMER SCOUTS STORIES OF PERIL IN SCHOOL SAWS

Charges by members of the city council schools committee that health of pupils is endangered by unguarded saws and emery wheels in school shops were discounted yesterday by President Walter J. Raymer of the board of education.

"If the complaints are based upon a genuine concern for the children's welfare and not upon politics," he said, "they will be presented to the board, and an investigation will follow."

George B. Arnold, state director of labor, said that he was not empowered to interfere in school affairs, "the child labor act referring specifically to children engaged in gainful occupation."

Polish Teacher Fined $11 for Spreading Darwinism.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
KATTOUITZ, Poland, May 20.—M. Dindosh, a school teacher, was fined 100 zloty today after his trial on a charge of teaching the Darwinian theory in his school at Ples, because the authorities found that the schoolmaster "could not prove his teachings were correct." Though 100 zloty is only $11, it is the equivalent of a month's pay for the teacher. The latter's lawyers have appealed.

WIDOW OF SLAIN MAJOR GETS NEW INSURANCE TRIAL

Mrs. Corrine Hanna, widow of Maj. Mark Hanna of Kansas City, Mo., who was killed while leading his battalion in an attack on a German position on Armistice day, was granted a new trial by Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe yesterday in her suit to collect $13,000 government war risk insurance upon a policy held by her husband.

A jury had previously found in favor of the government and at the same time absolved Mrs. Hanna of charges of living with a notorious bandit and thereby defaming the character of her late husband. Judge Cliffe, in allowing the new trial, ruled that the verdict in favor of the government was not consistent with the other finding.

GOVERNMENT BY THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE.

President Coolidge has been called on by the Anti-Saloon League to complete what the league describes as "an unmistakable understanding." It refers to what the league says was a bargain made when the prohibition reorganization bill was up in congress. What the league wants under that agreement is control of the enforcement of the Volstead act.

After the reorganization Roy A. Haynes of the league was made temporary prohibition commissioner. That, being temporary, was only a temporary satisfaction of the league's demands on the President and the government. The executive committee of the league was meeting in Washington to plan a fight on Al Smith's candidacy for President when it was learned that Haynes was to be bounced out of his temporary place and that either Dr. James M. Doran, chief chemist of the treasury department, or former Lieut. Gov. Lowman of New York would be given the appointment.

Doran is chief in the bureau which has been trying to put poisons in alcohol that the cooks could not redress out of it. He is understood to be a dry by principle and conviction. Nevertheless the executive committee adopted a resolution demanding the appointment of an enforcement chief satisfactory to it and prescribing that he should be one "who has had adequate experience in enforcement work."

It's rather interesting although it is not clear whether the Anti-Saloon league is a government making treaties with the American government or is a coordinate branch of government with the executive, legislative, and judicial or a super executive branch to which the other branches are responsible. Nor is it clear who the "unmistakable understanding" with Mr. Coolidge embraced in its entirety. The league refers to the fact without going into the details.

Any view of the Anti-Saloon league as an organization of executive secretaries and private citizens associated in private enterprise has long ago evaporated. It lost such characteristics soon after the adoption of prohibition and took on an official government nature and now there might be genuine astonishment to discover that the constitution does not provide for its existence and that congress has not delegated authority to it by statute. Its actual place in Washington is now apparently official. If it deals with the government of the United States by treaty it would be the usual procedure to have the treaties submitted to the senate for its advice and consent.

If it has the power to make appointments and if it has charge of prohibition enforcement it would be in keeping with procedure for its nominations to be sent to the senate by the executive committee of the league. It might be out of reason to suggest that these appointments be submitted to the advice and consent of the senate. It rather would be a formality for the record, without an impairment of the league's sovereignty.

There would be nothing inconsistent in the league's assumption of sovereignty if it made itself a self levying body and appropriated from the public funds for its purposes. It has remade the law of the land to conform to Volstead, and further developments will be merely sequential incidents. It now evidently thinks it has the power to make secret treaties with the President of the United States affecting legislation and the enforcement of law.

It may be a jolt to this theory of sovereignty that it has been announced that Mr. Doran will succeed Mr. Haynes as commissioner of prohibition and that Seymour Lowman of New York is to displace Lincoln C. Andrews as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of the enforcement of the prohibition act.

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA.

A TRIBUNE reader, Mr. Carl Keith, sends us a clipping from the Times of Ceylon, April 17:

"Some day the Americans may turn their attention from reforming the world to setting their own house in order. Few English people realize the extent of America's underworld industry, or its sinister ramifications. Since prohibition lowered the general standard of official and public morality and spread deeper and wider the national disease of 'graft,' things have gone from bad to worse. America's total of motor cars per population does not so far exceed ours as do our murders. Against 150 murders for the 38,000,000 population of England and Wales, Chicago alone, with 3,000,000 population, has a yearly budget of 400. For every fifty-four murders two murderers are sentenced. A huge criminal corporation, ranging from super-grafters to alley rats, exists and flourishes. The police are either bribed or terrorized into comparative impotence. And the evil feature is that popular opinion regards these criminal symptoms with almost admiring toleration. Big crime chiefs 'mix' with heavily jeweled ladies in smart society."

This spirited picture of his home town, Mr. Keith says, is too farce, and should have an answer. We trust he has answered it in the Times of Ceylon. We are sure the Times has a Vox Pop, for writing to the Times, we have always been told, is the birthright of a Briton. We hope Mr. Keith pointed out that the picture of Chicago which has touched his civic pride was drawn from London, not in Chicago, and that the paragraph which follows it indicates an interest in the movies that may explain the artist's sources of information. Our own experience of news in the Far East as it relates to the United States or any part or activity thereof convinces us that if blood is thicker than water it is not as thick as printer's ink.

And we remain rather unconcerned as to this presentation of Chicago. All great cities have been described in much the same terms. The Paris of Eugene Sue, the London of Alasworth were probably as like to their models as the Times correspondent's picture of Chicago is like to real Chicago. Our car loadings, our pork packing, our park mileage, our incomparable summer climate, will never fix us in the world's eye. Our museums, colleges, and schools will do nothing for us, but "a huge criminal corporation" which bribes and terrorizes the police is something to the purpose, and what could be more fascinating than that "big crime chiefs mix with heavily jeweled ladies in smart society"?

Chicago, in short, is becoming a real city in the European sense. We are not as romantic as we are described, but neither is Paris nor London nor Constantinople, and never was.

McCRAV.

The federal parole board has recommended the release from Atlanta penitentiary of Warren McCray, former governor of Indiana. If the attorney general approves the recommendation, McCray will be at liberty on Aug. 1, after having served a third of his term of ten years.

McCray was convicted on thirteen counts of having used the mails to defraud. He was in office at the time of his conviction. His victims included men and women of limited means who trusted him because of the high office he held. He betrayed the confidence reposed in him. His defense was a denial of intent to defraud. He admitted signing other men's names but said he thought he was solvent when he did it.

The jury, we believe, evaluated that defense at about the proper figure, but almost since the day of the conviction efforts have been made to win a pardon for the fallen governor. Political pressure has been used in Washington and social pressure has also been exerted. Until now the effort has been resisted and the resistance should continue. McCray in prison is an object lesson to the country in the impartiality of the law; so long as his punishment continues, no man can say that our justice is one thing for the humble man and another for the man of position. McCray liberated provides an object lesson of a wholly different variety.

THE SITE FOR THE NEW BRIDGE.

As a result of the conference over the proper site for the outer drive bridge, it appears evident that any effort to place the bridge to the west of the mouth of the river will be resisted in the courts by property owners. Litigation lasting for years can hardly be avoided if the McCrory court route is adopted. If there are any advantages in the McCrory court location they are not sufficient to warrant so long a delay. The site at the mouth of the river can be developed without delay. It is therefore clearly preferable.

COMPENSATION.

A bill amending the workmen's compensation act has passed the house at Springfield by a vote of 109 to 3. The bill has been introduced by organized labor and organized employers. Under the bill the compensation paid to workmen for injuries of various sorts is to be increased somewhat. This is a step in the right direction. The amounts now paid to workmen injured in line of duty are insufficient. The amounts should be large enough to enable a workman who has been maimed to pay his hospital expenses and support himself in decency until he is able to return to his job or find another which he may fill despite his injury. Illinois, though one of the principal manufacturing states in the union, is by no means in the lead in its provisions for compensation. The present act is in need of revision.

APPLE BLOSSOM TIME.

[Grand Rapids Herald.]

"Noneless as the springtime
Has grown of verdure weaves,
And all the trees on all the hills
Open their thousand leaves."

The West Bridge road orchard country is celebrating the annual miracle of Blossom Time. Southern Michigan already has made merry in its blossom festival. A little later Northern Michigan will pay homage to the cherry blossoms. Now is Bridge road's season. So far as the immediate vicinity of Grand Rapids is concerned, Bridge road constitutes our premier blossom area. There are other orchard sections, such as Walker road north of Leonard, and Alpine road; but the contour of the land, the lay of the farms and the variegated beauty of the blossoms nil combine happily along West Bridge to make that section notably a blossoming paradise. Orchardists are cooperating among themselves to share with the public the beauties of their farms. All of Grand Rapids has been invited; and most of Grand Rapids will do well to accept the invitation.

Japan boasts of its cherry blossoms. California and Florida are proud of the orange blossom, but where is there a finer combination of beauty and fragrance than the apple blossom, varying from pink to white and exuding a glorious perfume? In truth, spring is at its best when the apple trees are in bloom. Nature provides cooperating features. Violet and trillium now have opened their petals, wild cherries are white with blossoms, and in the marshes the cowslip glazes. All are a part of apple blossom time. To be alive and healthy when Michigan apple trees bloom is to be happy in the reflected spell of the glory of our blossom land.

QUEEN WASN'T PARTICULAR.

"Here," remarked the guide, who was showing a party over an old historic mansion, "we have the room which Queen Elizabeth slept in."
"Pardon me," said a voice. "I fancy there's a mistake here. That bed is Jacobean, and a reproduction of that."
"But," protested the guide, "you'll allow me to contradict you, sir. I have been here for some time now, and I know what I'm talking about. Besides, the queen didn't care what make of bed it was, either."—Scotsman.

FOODS RICH IN IRON FOR ANEMICS.

HERE is a general agreement that foods rich in iron are good for those who are anemic and in special need of this mineral. Even in the days when authorities were advising against the use of ordinary medicine, iron tonics, faith in spinach and juicy steaks as iron-rich goods persisted. Now that there has been some revival of support of iron tonics the food iron continues in demand. Some go so far as to say that certain iron foods are indicated in pernicious anemia, a form of blood trouble that was held to be beyond the reach of iron in any form.

Among all the research students, Drs. Whipple and Robbert-Robbins have been the most persistent in searching for sources of food iron. In a recent study they put chicken gizzard first among the foods that a person with simple anemia should eat. It supplies more iron than any other food. Ordinary lean pork, such as ham and pork chops, ranked near the top; beef heart, pig heart, beef tripe and lean beef ranked in the order named. By lean beef is meant all the various steak cuts, shoulder, brisket and ribs.

They gave high rank also to pig and beef kidney. Chicken liver ranked with beef and pig liver as good food for a person with anemia. On the other hand they did not get good results when they fed fish and fish livers to anemic animals.

Their experiments showed milk and all foods made therefrom to be poor in blood making values. Of course, skim milk has always had that reputation, but good rich cream was supposed to put a bloom on the cheeks. Butter, cream cheese, cheese of other kinds, cream, and every kind of milk are of low value as antidotes for anemia. When for any reason a person must eat milk or milk products, he should also eat spinach and green vegetables to keep up his supply of blood iron. Just so a baby on an exclusive milk diet uses up his reserve of iron and becomes white and pale after a few months, and must eat cereal, egg yolk and meats to get back on the proper health plane.

Misses Simmonds and Becker and Dr. McCollum think they may have found the reason for giving liver to people who have pernicious anemia. Liver is rich in iron. It is given to persons with other forms of anemia because of this quality. But in addition to its iron content liver is rich in vitamin E. They suggest that possibly vitamin E, when mixed in a food with food iron, promotes the absorption of the latter. They found that inorganic iron could be made to absorb in the digestive tract by mixing them with vitamin E.

HOT BATHS FOR THE NERVOUS.
D. B. B. writes: "I understand that many of our best athletes and other recommended for people afflicted with nervousness."

What is the proper temperature at which they should be taken and how frequently and at what time of the day should they be taken?
REPLY.
You want the full warm bath. The temperature of this bath is 100 to 105. They are generally taken just before retiring each night.

If the person stays in the tub less than fifteen minutes it will not be necessary to add hot water during the bath.
NEEDS ABDOMINAL BAND.
A. O. C. writes: "A 21 year old mother of two month infant registers a blood pressure of 100."

Kindly advise methods, foods, etc., to increase to normal.
REPLY.
Let her wear an abdominal binder. It should be applied while she lies with the knees bent and the hips high. Beyond that she need do nothing.

BETTER GET WAREHOUSE TO SELL CAR.

Chicago, May 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The owner of an automobile has stored his car in his garage and has paid no storage charges since October of 1926. I have tried since to locate him, but have failed. Have advertised three times in this Chicago Tribune "Legal Notices" column as to selling car for storage charges.

Advise me if car can be sold, also as to legal form necessary to sell said car.
A creditor does not, merely by virtue of being in possession of goods belonging to the owner, have any technical right to sell without legal proceedings, although the right of self would give him a qualified immunity if he sold without right. Hence, unless the value of the goods is small compared with the debt, so that they are not likely to be reclaimed, a safe course is to proceed under the 1921 statute, which gives any person who has expended labor or material on a chattel or furnished storage, at the request of its owner, a lien analogous to the familiar mechanic's lien on real estate. Such lien ceases at the expiration of 60 days from delivery of the goods to the owner, unless claimant files in the recorder's office a lien notice. Such lien may be foreclosed by ordinary chattel mortgage proceedings, and sale, the first step of which is to deliver to the sheriff a certified copy of the claim for lien, indorsed with request for foreclosure. Adverse parties may within ten days deny the lien, in which case foreclosure in chancery must be begun within an additional ten days. If no denial, the sheriff advertises and sells.

If your principal object is simply to get the car out of the garage, it is simpler to sue for the car. To be alive and healthy when Michigan apple trees bloom is to be happy in the reflected spell of the glory of our blossom land.
TRINITY LAW DEPARTMENT.
LINEMAN, SPARE THAT TREE!
Henry, Ill., May 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A property owner here has any recourse against a telephone company for damage to trees along its property if they mutilate the trees without owner's permission or permission of the city?
R. H. H.
Depends upon the location of the trees and upon whether the damage was unreasonable. If the branches encroached upon the highway and the company merely removed such as were necessary, there would be no remedy.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How is the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MAURICE IS DEAD.

Cropped head:
Long body,
Svelte, lean:
With much of the serpent,
Undulant and cold,
In eyes that laugh.
Maurice is dead—
Maurice, the dancer.

Play me a long, deep chord
On the bull-fiddle,
And a little, wailing cry,
Agitato, amoroso,
Upon the flute.

Maurice is dead.
Many a white Eve,
Meeting his hot-cold eyes,
Has trembled in Paradise
And dreamed—of apples.
Many a slender Eve
Has beaten her wings
Upon the flaming sword
Of the Angel at the gate,
And turned away,
No longer able to meet
Eyes of the seraphim.

Maurice is dead.
Where is he now,
Maurice, the dancer?
Is there a heaven
Of lights and rhythm
Where he may glide,
Sinuous, shadowy girls at his side?

Is there an Eve
Waiting him there,
To plead—to plead?
"Lord, he was subtle,
"Subtle and cold,
"Cold and compelling,
"Compelling and sweet,
"As Thou didst make him.
"But he was kind—
"Once—he was kind—
"Once—shall Eve say,
Pleading in Paradise
Striving to hold him there,
Maurice, the dancer.

Maurice comes dancing,
Hot-cold, and turbulent,
Lithely androgynous,
(As Thou hast made him).

Turn up the lights then,
Tune up the fiddles,
Eves, with your Adams,
Play for him!—Play for him!

Agitato—amoroso—
Play sweetly—play softly—
Diminuendo—lento—
Pianissimo—dolcissimo—
Scordato!—SCORDATO!
Ah-h-h!—Volte—
Volte!
De profundis, Domine.
Maurice is dead.

BULLY D.

DEAN LATROFF says that the man who goes home from a bridge game and criticizes his wife for her errors at bridge is not fostering Christian ideals. That's all right if it's bridge, but what about the Christian ideals if the game was poker? And she piped up, "Oh, I'll have to throw away my hand, I've only got two pairs of queens." Dean, there are times when a man is compelled to speak firmly.

Battling Carroll is Defied.

Dick: Through you I send a challenge to your notorious George Carroll. I defy him to go from spot to spot in seven counties. And "old" to "new" in any number his little heart desires.

ALAN.

Most Assuredly, Most Assuredly!

R. H. L.: With skirts the way they are the old one about "learning at his mother's knee" is certainly up to date.

MR. SINCLAIR, the w. k. gasoline magnate, has been sentenced to three months in jail because of his extreme reticence before the senate committee. And if he has to serve his sentence it will be in the District of Columbia jail. Why, even Earl Carroll, the bath tub malefactor, was ordered to a nice, big spacious government penitentiary, and it seems an outrage that a New York millionaire should be put to the calabasses in Washington.

THE I. F. AND THE R. P. L.

RHL: An Industrious Farmer had a nice Orchard of Apples. One day a Richly Painted Lady stopped her Automobile near the orchard fence and then put out a Bushel of the Farmer's apples in the Car. After while the Industrious Farmer came out and Looked on. If I had all those Apples," said the Richly Painted Lady, starting in on the Second Bushel, "I'd have me a Cider press."

"Uh huh," said the Industrious Farmer, "and if I had your Crust I'd have me a Pie Factory!"

ORACLE.

Oh, This Is Terrible! Won't Some One Help Him?
R. H. L.: Quick... who's got it?... Hades to Earth... in five moves... Goah... this is awful... Satan found out that I had appealed for help... and he's mad as the devil... He's been... right next to me... I... have a horrible suspicion... that one of them is trying to play... "In a Little Spanish Town"... this is terrible!... can't somebody get me out of here... ## Why, Maids—You're Wonderful!

R. H. L.: Battling Carroll's game is breaking up my home. I have no time to wash dishes or mend socks. If he can turn bread into stone in less than thirteen leaps, my whole morning has been wasted. Of course, the "fast" set to the "slow" club in six is the matter of a moment, and paper can be turned into money in eight, without legal difficulty. Can you do it?

THOSE WHITE HOUSE PETS

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S
COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 21, 1862.

BEFORE CORINTH.—There was skirmishing along the whole line today, while feeling the rebels' strength and seeking for a more advantageous position. The Federal army is advancing slowly.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—One hundred Maryland slave holders called on President Lincoln to complain that Gen. Wadsworth, under plea of existing martial law, had refused to let slaves be returned. The real complaint is that he raises the question of the loyalty of the claimants and takes the slaves' testimony on the point. President Lincoln told them he had the utmost confidence in Gen. Wadsworth, but would arrange the matter.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—John H. Brown, colored, filed a petition under the District emancipation act, claiming compensation for his children, whom he purchased 18 and 19 years ago for $100 apiece. He wants $1,000 each. Petitions from 303 slave holders for 1,075 slaves already have been filed with the commissioners.

TUNSTALL'S STATION, Va.—The Federal advance under Gen. Stoneman reached Coal Harbor on the road to Richmond, and he found the enemy to be in force there. He drove their pickets to within two miles of the main body and encamped. Indications are that the rebels intend to defend Richmond with all the available force they can bring forward.

CHICAGO.—Richard Conway and Miss Sarah Young were married at St. John's church by the Rev. H. N. Bishop.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 21, 1902.

HAVANA.—Cuba took her place among the free and independent nations of the earth. Precisely at noon the flag of the United States was lowered and guns from the fortress and from warships in the harbor paid first honors to the Cuban flag. Governor General Wood, in behalf of President Roosevelt, formally transferred the government to President Tomas Estrada Palma.

CHICAGO.—Judge Peter S. Grosscup in the United States Circuit court issued a temporary injunction restraining the packers from further operations under alleged illegal agreements "in restraint of trade and commerce."
OMAHA.—Fifty-four young men students of the high school appeared before the board of trustees of the Principal Waterhouse called a meeting of teachers and instructed them not to admit students hereafter unless they are "properly clothed."

PORT DE FRANCE, Island of Martinique.—There was another terrible eruption of Mont Pelee that imperiled Fort de France. People of this city became panic-stricken and rushed about the streets in great alarm. Stones as large as baseballs fell here and there.
CHICAGO.—Miss Mabel Holbrook, daughter of Mrs. Francis Wayland Holbrook, and Herbert Smith King were married at the home of the bride's mother in Buena Park.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 21, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Approximately 100,000 American soldiers will take part in the fighting in France before the close of the 1917 operations. If the government is able to carry out its present plans. The division of regulars under Gen. Pershing will be in action before additional troops are sent forward. The plan is to send the National Guard men to Europe early in September.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago Teachers' federation, one of the chief storm centers of the city school system for nearly two decades, severed its connection with organized labor.

CHICAGO.—Instructions to prepare for active service, probably in France, were received by Col. Joseph B. Sanborn, commanding the First Illinois Infantry, from the war department.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The whole country will soon blaze with Liberty Loan advertisements. "Liberty Loan week" probably will start June 2.

NEW YORK.—Capt. Franz Rintelen of the German navy, David Lamar and Henry Martin were found guilty in Federal court of conspiring in 1916 to disrupt the transatlantic traffic between this country and the entente allies.

LIBRARY CENSORSHIP.

Chicago, May 16.—It was somewhat to laugh when yesterday I read The Tribune editorial, "Shall Thought Be Free?" and the letter from Irene McGevery exhorting "our library."

Isn't it strange that while The Tribune is exploring the world daily for instances of outrage against liberty of thought and action right here under its nose there has been going on for years a process of bureaucratic suppression of thought? As a matter of fact, in the Chicago so-called public library half the books of importance are "starred," which means (assuming one is a lady or gentleman of leisure) that one can take them to a library table and read them during library hours; although even this privilege is discouraged by many of our library's alleged public servants. Try to take out Henry Fielding's perfectly innocuous "The History of Jonathan Wild" and see what happens.

Moreover, many of our library's branch managers take it upon themselves to exercise a censorship about which most of the dear people who pay their salaries know little and apparently care less. For example, at the uptown branch, 4839 Broadway, after Sam Putnam's article on Chicago appeared in the American Mercury that magazine was immediately banished to an "under the desk position," together with Life and some other periodicals which the aforesaid dear public pays for, but is not permitted to see by request—and if one has the misfortune to be an adolescent that request is not granted.

HARRY L. JOHNS.

THE MAYMARKET STATUE.
Chicago, May 16.—When I read in one of your issues last week that the famous Haymarket riot statue was to be restored to its former glory I thought it report was a canard, but when today's issue you reported that the Chicago Surface Lines had agreed to let the bill and showed on your back page a photograph of solemn looking citizens congregated about the fallen idol I was fawed.

Formerly, whenever friends came to town and asked me to show them the city I would take them to see the marvellously funny statue. The pudgy figure whose uniform was the latest model in 1893 invariably evoked laughter. He delightedly unconcerned derby on his swagging valrus mustache, his placid smile, his antediluvian mien, his skirted frock coat, suggestive of his of bustles—all these details of his makeup made us smile.

The fact is that none of the reporters got the real low down on the story of the wrecking of the statue. The fact of the matter was that a new street was to be run down Randolph street and it happened, being unconcerned in ludicrous sights and seeing this monstrosity at Ogden avenue, the street was so tickled it just couldn't control itself and jumped the track in sheer derision of the sculptured traffic on its seemed to run that corner. That's the real reason the Surface Lines are offering to pay the damages.

HE WANTS HIS MONEY.

Chicago, April 17.—Why is it the city controller refuses to pay the most due on the awards in the Milwaukee avenue widening case? The bonds were sold months ago and the public benefit appropriation by the city council was made in February. The city has the $1,000,000 and get your money with your title papers in perfect condition and you are met with a flat refusal and "no money being paid at present."

FEAR MISSISSIPPI FLOOD MAY CUT A NEW CHANNEL

Five More Parishes Are Periled by Overflow.

New Orleans, La., May 20.—(AP)—The shadow of the Mississippi flood peril was thrown over five additional parishes in south central Louisiana today as John M. Parker, flood relief director, warned residents of one of them that there was imminent danger of more water against their levees than could be held.

He urgently requested that all women and children and all aged and infirm persons evacuate Pointe Coupee parish and that preparations be made to remove livestock.

May Cut New Channel.

At the same time it was pointed out there was a possibility that the millions of tons of water pushing through the Tensas basin might cut a new channel for the river along the path of the Atchafalaya.

While authorities pointed out this was entirely conjectural they regarded the danger to Pointe Coupee parish as imminent. The parish is located at the point of the wedge along the sides of which beat the waters of the Atchafalaya and the Mississippi and with connecting the two rivers, forming the delta.

Threatens 107,400 Persons.

The parish, with a population of 24,000, is at the upper extremity of the "Sugar Bowl" and a break along the levee front in that parish would lose the flood waters into the parishes of Assumption, Iberville, West Baton Rouge and Terrebonne, which have a total population of 107,400 persons.

A total of more than two million acres of land is included in the area which will be in the path of the waters from a break along the Pointe Coupee levee. The danger points are approximately 150 miles northwest of New Orleans and on the opposite side of the Mississippi river.

CHICAGO'S TOTAL IS $965,208.99.

Chicago's officially recorded fund for the relief of Mississippi Valley flood sufferers last night reached $965,208.99, divided in the following manner: Association of Commerce-Red Cross joint fund, $461,778.99; and Mayor William Hale Thompson's fund, $103,430.

The largest contribution listed in the Association-Red Cross fund was that of $4,700, sent in from the Oak Park Red Cross branch. A check for $1,728.46 additional came in from radio station WMAQ. Audiences of the Chicago, Roosevelt, Oriental, and McVicker's theaters donated $734.09, and the employees of the Chicago By-Products company gave $266.

HARRY SINCLAIR SENTENCED TO 3 MONTHS, FINED

Will Appeal Conviction for Senate Contempt.

(Picture on back page.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Speccial.]—Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil operator, was sentenced today to serve three months in the District jail and pay a fine of $500 for contempt of the United States senate in refusing to answer questions asked him during the Teapot Dome oil lease scandal investigation in 1924. He was found guilty by a jury six weeks ago and was liable to a maximum fine of $1,000 and a year in jail.

Sinclair immediately announced that he proposed to appeal from the sentence to the United States Supreme court, if necessary, and was released

under a $5,000 bond pending a hearing of his appeal by the District Court of Appeals. Under the rules of local procedure, Sinclair's attorneys have 30 days in which to prepare the record for an appeal and 90 days in which to docket the case in the Court of Appeals.

Lawyer Takes Blame.

Martin W. Littleton of New York, chief of counsel for Sinclair, made a statement to Justice William Hitz, who imposed the sentence, declaring that he had advised Sinclair not to answer, believing that congress had no right in 1924 under the then existing law to compel the attendance or testimony of witnesses.

Littleton declared that, at most, Sinclair was guilty of a technical violation of law and "a mere irregularity," and pleaded with Justice Hitz not to impose a sentence that would shame

the oil man and reflect on his family.

Gov. Ritchie re-

It is of the utmost importance, he said, that east and west understand each other better, "for the west is and tone of our national institutions."

"My own view about prohibition is that until the sentiment of the coun-state, within constitutional limits, may settle it in accordance with the con-

HARLAN ATTACKS CAR PLANS AS FULL OF "JOKERS"

Speaks Before West Side Business Men.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

John Maynard Harlan, attorney for the Lismann traction plan, which he says easily can be adapted to the indeterminate franchise system, ripped into the five proposed transit bills yesterday noon before the West Side Chamber of Commerce.

The joint statement regarding these bills which were given to the public under the names of Messrs. Blair, Budd, and Busby, Mr. Harlan said, was "very able and adroitly conceived and promulgated."

"It was drawn by a master hand, a fine Italian hand," Mr. Harlan said. "Though he is not an Italian, but what is sometimes good naturedly called a 'Turk,' I think my good friend Barney Mullany probably is entitled to the credit of having drafted that very astute document."

Mr. Mullany is vice president of the Gas company in charge of public relations. The speaker asserted that the joint statement claimed too much merit for the bills in saying there are no jokers in them.

Says Bills Contain Jokers.
"They do contain jokers," Mr. Harlan said, "but I suspect that the author of the statement and its signers felt somehow that these jokers were 'insulated.' What the process of insulation was to be, I do not know, but perhaps recent history may furnish some clue as to the modus operandi of effecting complete insulation of the jokers from the approach of common sense."

"Smith is a usual name. When we think of that name, why, that is all I think is necessary to suggest a clue as to the possible process of insulation."

But at the very outset, let me say that if there is anybody who is contemplating an investment at Springfield, I beg to remind him that he should better look sharply to see whether he is likely to have made an unprofitable investment, or whether he can reap the fruits, the expected fruits, of the investment."

Calls Them Disabling Bills.
Among the defects in the bills, Mr. Harlan said that they will prohibit the city from granting a twenty year franchise. He added: "This legislation called enabling really is disabling legislation. Instead of enlarging the powers of the city it absolutely cripples it and destroys one power the city now has."

The second "joker" cited by Mr. Harlan was phrased as follows: "Put it down unhesitatingly would this legislation absolutely would tie the city hand and foot so that it could not deal with any one in the transportation field except Mr. Insull."

Says Plan Continues Loop.
Skipping to another defect, Mr. Harlan said: "This Insull program means the perpetuation of the elevated loop."

Regarding another thing he called a "joker," the fighting lawyer said: "If the legislation and accompanying ordinance are passed, they will pass out and destroy one power the city now has."

A few words from Mr. Harlan on another "joker" are: "This legislation if consummated by ordinance which they seek, will mean a perpetual franchise in the streets of Chicago vested in the Chicago Rapid Transit company, or if Mr. Insull prefers it in the north shore railroad."

Casts Doubt at Referendum.
Then on another subject, the speaker said: "There is not a word said in the bills by name about a referendum. Imagine this fast and innocent stuff being pulled. The legislation is passed and they start negotiating and haven't finished when the present temporary permit expires in August. Then some one suggests to the council that the permit be extended temporarily. These bills provide that any permit given shall be indeterminate, which means perpetual regardless of what is said in the permit. The perpetual franchise would already have been granted and there would have been no referendum."

Lets Show You Another One.
"Let me show you another one," continued Mr. Harlan. "Under the bills Mr. Insull could buy out the Yellow Cab company and operate it as part of his local transportation system."

Pays Compliment to Insull.
"Mr. Insull is a very able seaman. He is a splendid driver. If his program goes through, Chicago will be bound hand and foot to the chariot wheels of Mr. Insull."

The West Side Chamber of Commerce adopted a motion instructing the chairman to appoint a committee to go to Springfield next Tuesday and fight the enabling legislation. Thomas Little, former alderman, presided at the luncheon.

concerned in the bills and had laid down his fundamentals to them.

"Those fundamentals were quoted in THE TRIBUNE last Thursday morning. The mayor had added that he had been assured by men concerned that they had followed those principles, so it was asked whether the mayor or his representative followed the progress of the drafting of the bills."

"Was Mr. Ettelson in on any of these conferences?" Mr. Insull was asked.

"I had no conversation whatever with Mr. Ettelson, but he was kept posted right along on what was being done," Mr. Insull replied. "Mr. Porter conferred with him."

Bankers at Final Parley.
"When the final conference was held Mr. Harris, Mr. Wetmore, and Mr. Mullany were present. The reason Mr. Mullany was not at any of the other conferences was because he was in New York."

Albert W. Harris, chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, is trustee under the mortgage of the Chicago Railways company, and Frank O. Wetmore, chairman of the board of the First National bank, is trustee under the mortgage of the Chicago City Railway company. Bernard J. Mullany is a vice president of the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company.

The so-called home rule provision of one of the five bills has created considerable discussion. It provides that the governmental control of the consolidated company shall be vested in a district transit commission of five members, with jurisdiction throughout Cook county. Two commissioners would be appointed by the governor, two by the mayor, and one by the president of the county board.

The bill makes selection of most of the employees and the proposed board's expenditures subject to the approval of the governor.

"Which one of the conferees was responsible for that provision?" Mr. Insull was asked.

"I don't know that any one person was responsible," he answered.

"Who first suggested it?" was the next query.

"It was a natural evolution of the discussions around the table," Mr. Insull rejoined. "It was an effort to involve a scheme that would meet the demands for home rule."

Denies Feature Was Political.
"Wasn't it also an effort to meet the expected demands of politics?" Mr. Insull was asked.

"No, I will say that no request for that sort of a provision was made of us," Mr. Insull retorted. "May I answer all these questions which you are asking? The point of all your questions is to find some trick in the bills. That is plain."

"There are no jokers in the bills. They are open and above board. All the cards are on the table. There is nothing hidden in those bills. They are purely company bills. They represent the agreed policy of the companies on enabling legislation."

"Switching to another subject, Mr. Insull, is there anything in these bills which has to do with the freight tunnels under the streets in connection with the transit program?"

"Nothing whatever," he answered, "but I don't mind saying that it is my offhand opinion that the tunnels supply a cheap way of disposing of the waste material in connection with subway construction. I may be wrong, but that view, but unquestionably it will be checked up before subway construction starts. Let me repeat, there is nothing hidden or partly hidden in these bills. There is no joker of any kind in them."

TO PAY BOND INTEREST
The bondholders' protective committee of the Chicago City Railway and the Culmet and South Chicago Railway companies last night announced that the interest due on the first mortgage 5 per cent bonds of both companies will be paid on Aug. 1. The principal of the bonds matured Feb. 1 with the expiration of the traction ordinance and has been in default.

"Earnings are ample to pay interest obligations," a letter sent out to the bondholders says. "Bondholders who have not yet deposited their bonds are urged to do so at once in order that they may receive their interest promptly and simplify the problem of collecting same."

WIFE AT STORE; KILLS SELF.
Dietrich Buchling, 78, of 1419 West Seventeenth street, committed suicide by inhaling gas in his home yesterday while his wife, Mary, was at a nearby store.

NINE CIVIC GROUPS ASK TIME TO TALK ON REVENUE BILLS

Nine civic organizations announced after a luncheon yesterday that they desire to be heard on the city's revenue bills pending before the state legislature, a joint hearing on which is scheduled for next Tuesday, and want more time in which to determine their attitude. These bills seek to double the city's bonding power, build Chicago schoolhouses by bond issues and divide the present $1 tax rate of the school building fund, which totals about $18,500,000 a year, between the city corporate and educational funds.

The organizations are: Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency, Association of Commerce, Building Managers' association, Chicago Real Estate board, City club, Civic Federation, Committee of One Hundred, Industrial club and the Legislative Voters' league.

A letter was dispatched to Corporation Counsel Ettelson saying that insufficient time is available before Tuesday to give the bills adequate consideration. They requested that the city join with them in asking for legislative committee action until they can present their views.

Mr. Ettelson said that he is in favor of giving them a hearing, "but," he said, "if the bills are delayed a week, I do not want the impression to go out that they have been smothered in committee, and suggest that if the bills are reported out next week that I urge that they be given a hearing either before the senate or house committee of the whole."

I refer to Mr. Hulbert Footner, author of a novel which has been banned in Boston, entitled "Antennae." Mr. Footner's book is to be found in many of the village homes of England, where romances of life in the north-west and tales of exciting adventure in the great American cities are read with avidity.

"Antennae" has not yet been published here, so I cannot say what will be the reaction of the British public to Boston's banned. Mr. Footner himself has the greatest relish for life and for the fellowship of other men of any human being I have ever met.

A new collection of the stories of Mr. H. G. Wells—a book of a thousand pages, and a book in a thousand—is in preparation, and will be published in the late spring. This will serve to remind us, if we need reminding, that Mr. Wells' shorter stories are, in my own view, Mr. Wells' tale, "The Purple Pileus," whatever its aesthetic merits, is the best picture of Cockney life and character ever written; and in that matter I claim to know what I am talking about.

His more famous short stories are models of what such things should be.

Homeward Trek of Authors Starts in England, America

By Frank Swinnerton.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The travelers are returning home. Upon every hand I hear of those who are leaving America to come back to England, and so it is probable that all our authors will be sitting at their desks writing books which we can read at our leisure towards the beginning of next year. One American writer—he was born in Canada, but he is a citizen of the United States—who is better known and more widely read in England than he is in America, is now upon the ocean, with his family, after a winter in Rome, a brief stay in London, a scamper down to the Surrey hills, and a wild rush to Southampton.

Miss Catherine Schrieber of room 1500, 118 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, is the winner of this week's literary quiz prize. Each week THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE pays $25 for a list of literary questions and answers. Write, or typewrite, on one side of the paper only, and address your manuscript care Editor Literary Quiz, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. No manuscripts will be returned. Try your questions on your friends and send their ratings with the list. Include a few extra questions in case some of yours are duplicated of those already printed.

Miss Schrieber tried her list on a banker, who scored 60 and on a librarian who scored 68.

Following are the questions:

1. The library of what philosopher has recently been destroyed by the Nazis?

2. Under what name did Henri Beyle write?

3. Name several novels, since 1924, that have been produced on the legitimate stage.

4. What English poet, serving as deputy for a dead countryman, came to Harvard university during the last war to receive a gratuity?

5. Give the locale of "A Sentimental Journey."

6. What were the net proceeds that Milton received for "Paradise Lost," that have been produced on the legitimate stage?

7. What recent autobiographer, formerly an archaeologist, is now serving in the English army under the name of Shaw?

Prize in Literary Quiz Is Awarded to Chicago Woman

By Frank Swinnerton.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The travelers are returning home. Upon every hand I hear of those who are leaving America to come back to England, and so it is probable that all our authors will be sitting at their desks writing books which we can read at our leisure towards the beginning of next year. One American writer—he was born in Canada, but he is a citizen of the United States—who is better known and more widely read in England than he is in America, is now upon the ocean, with his family, after a winter in Rome, a brief stay in London, a scamper down to the Surrey hills, and a wild rush to Southampton.

Miss Catherine Schrieber of room 1500, 118 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, is the winner of this week's literary quiz prize. Each week THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE pays $25 for a list of literary questions and answers. Write, or typewrite, on one side of the paper only, and address your manuscript care Editor Literary Quiz, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. No manuscripts will be returned. Try your questions on your friends and send their ratings with the list. Include a few extra questions in case some of yours are duplicated of those already printed.

Miss Schrieber tried her list on a banker, who scored 60 and on a librarian who scored 68.

Following are the questions:

1. The library of what philosopher has recently been destroyed by the Nazis?

2. Under what name did Henri Beyle write?

3. Name several novels, since 1924, that have been produced on the legitimate stage.

4. What English poet, serving as deputy for a dead countryman, came to Harvard university during the last war to receive a gratuity?

5. Give the locale of "A Sentimental Journey."

Following are the questions:

WEST SIDE SITE IS URGED FOR CONVENTION HALL

Cermak Sees Victory for Enabling Bill.

Urged yesterday by the West Central association to build the proposed Chicago hall on the west side of the city, Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board, replied that he welcomed all suggestions for a site for the convention hall, and that all will receive consideration by the citizens' committee in charge of the project.

"At this time we are concentrating our forces upon the passage of the bill in the legislature which will empower the county board to propose a new bond issue for building the hall," Mr. Cermak said. "We expect the bill to pass next week."

Want Decision in June.

"It is our hope to be able to ask the voters in the June election to approve the bond issue for the hall, and then will be chosen by the citizens' committee. The most good for the greatest number may well be their aim."

After pointing out that a west side auditorium would be easily accessible to the masses of the people, the West Central association directors united in endorsing the site originally proposed by Edward H. Bennett, consulting architect for the Chicago plan commission. It faces upon Congress street, which is to be widened into a beautiful boulevard, with the other boundary streets Van Buren, Canal and Clinton.

John L. Fortune, director of the association, goes a step further, and suggests that an exhibition hall be built in conjunction with the Chicago hall, and wants this to be located on the opposite side of Congress street.

Most to Use Public Transit.

"The great part of the people who will fill the Chicago hall will not go there by automobile, which means that elevated, surface and bus lines must be available to the site," said Homer J. Buckley, president of the association. "Other sites suggested, on the north side and the lake front, are easily accessible to motor traffic, but putting the hall there would serve only further to congest traffic and would not serve the thousands of citizens who must use public vehicles."

With the appointment of a special council subcommittee, headed by Ald. Leonard J. Grossman [5th], a new impetus was given the city's activity in the building of the convention hall. Ald. Grossman said the committee would get in touch with President Cermak and the Association of Commerce immediately, offering cooperation and would then study the sites suggested and the legislation now pending.

MARGARET DAWES CLEARED IN AUTO MISHAP; TOLL 330

Miss Margaret Dawes, 18 year old daughter of Rufus C. Dawes of Evanston and a niece of Vice President Dawes, yesterday was cleared by Evanston police of any blame in connection with the injury of John Davies, 5 year old son of Samuel Davies, 1586 Maple avenue, Evanston, who was struck by her automobile Thursday.

Two deaths during the day raised the county motor toll to 330 since Jan. 1.

Nels Knutson, 5526 South Morgan street, was fatally injured at Morgan and 59th streets by a milk truck driven by Jacob Kramer, 5134 South Ada street. He died at German Deaconess hospital.

D. G. Meyers, 55 years old, a salesman of Wauconda, Ill., was fatally injured and his wife was hurt in a collision between his automobile and a milk truck at Dundee and Rand roads in Wheeling township. Herman Truck of Wheeling, driver of the truck, was held.

DEATH SENTENCE FOR KELLY NOT ASKED BY STATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.—[Special.]—Court adjournment interrupted final arguments to the jury in the murder trial of Paul Kelly late today, and the motion picture actor who is accused of murdering Ray Raymond may not learn his fate until Tuesday.

Deputy District Attorney George Kemp never mentioned first degree murder, which was alleged against Kelly in the indictment. It is expected a manslaughter verdict will be asked. The penalty is from one to ten years in prison.

"This man broke the commandment that 'Thou shalt not kill,'" Kemp cried to the jury of eight women and four men. "The full force of medical experts' testimony is that Raymond suffered unconsciousness and a brain hemorrhage, after Kelly had administered a beating to his one time friend. Raymond's only fault was that he objected to Kelly's relations with Mrs. Raymond.

"The testimony shows that Paul Michael Kelly violated a second one of the ten commandments after Ray Raymond had notified him to quit seeing Mrs. Raymond."

Kemp called Dorothy Mackaye [Mrs. Raymond] an assassin of her dead husband's character.

W. I. Gilbert, Kelly's counsel, made an impassioned plea to free Kelly, whom he called "this boy whose chief crime was that he drank some gin, sent some telegrams and letters, and defended himself and the name of the woman whom he loved."

After Deputy Attorney Forrest Murray closed the case for the prosecution Judge Charles Burnell will charge the jury, to whom the case probably will be submitted Monday.

Anoinette Donnelly Tells Women Paths to Beauty

Sophy Tancred's Husbands

By Elizabeth York Miller.

SYNOPSIS.
Sophy and Piers Tancred have lately taken the Villa Mona at Bordighera on the Italian Riviera. Sophy learns that her former husband, Alan Brooke, the sculptor, is now married and that they are to meet at dinner that night. She is afraid of her husband's jealousy and, since she thought she was a widow when he married her, she goes to Brooke's studio to warn him against telling Piers that they had been married. Alan tells Sophy that his housekeeper, Christina, is his wife and they have a little son. Willie, a male cousin of Bordighera, interrupts them and Sophy flies back to the Villa Mona in fear.

Sophy and Alan are able to spend a day together when Piers decides to attend a wedding party at Monte Carlo which Willie Moppet has arranged. Piers learns of the deception and his suspicions against Alan are aroused.

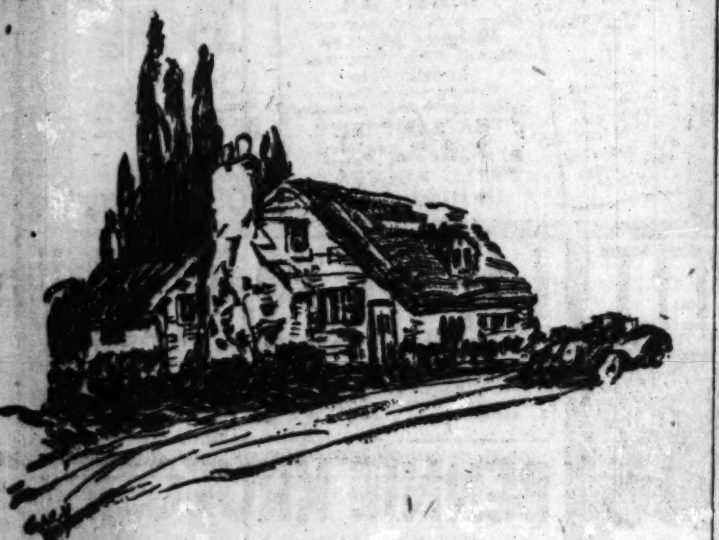

Willie Moppet arranges a concert to be held at the Doris hotel for his mother's company, Cecilia Bryant, who has a lovely voice. Willie learns that Lord Landell, who is a friend of the Doris, is his father, although his mother had never been married to him.

THE GAME.

The sardonic old man smirked to himself, and was quite convinced now that he had ferreted out something which might be called secret in Willie's life. Then suddenly the smirk faded, for Landell recalled that first interview when Willie mentioned his mother as staying at a villa—so the cottage had been turned—in the Vallecrosia valley, and that would be near Ventimiglia, or near enough.

But would the young adventurer really have his mother hanging so close to his heels? Wasn't it much more likely that it was this girl, and that he dragged in the allusion to his mother for the sake of effect?

Young, ambitious and poor! Well, that was a game, anyway. And Landell felt that something of that sort was needed to lighten the tedium of this place to which he had been recommended for his health's sake. The next day he drove up the Vallecrosia valley alone in one of his big cars, and although he ordered the chauffeur to drive slowly and kept his eye out all the way and he saw, and although unwittingly he passed the little cottage twice, he did not catch so much as a fleeting glimpse of Miss Bryant. But the invalid, when caught had been drawn to the front window, saw him both times, and in her own mind was convinced that he was trying to find where she lived and perhaps wished to call upon her.

For Clay this incident had quite another significance.

Mrs. Moppet told Clay about it, and was so excited that she lost her sleep that night.

For Clay, however, this incident had quite another significance—unless, of course, it were pure accident. A little silver ran down her spine, and she wasn't at all certain whether or not she liked the idea of being pursued.

The day of the ball and concert was a busy one for Willie Moppet. His activities were manifold, since he not only had the organizing of Clay's trial on his hands, and a mischievous lark to maneuver in connection with the ball, but a pretentious dinner party as well.

With this latter he faced a dilemma, but it was not insoluble. Some time before he had off-handedly invited the Tancred and Lilla Brant to dine with him that night, and had more or less asked Alan Brooke. The latter, however, could be put off very easily. What Willie hadn't anticipated, however, was a command from H. R. H. the Princess, Dohbert to give her dinner that evening at the Doris, as she intended to come to the concert. The old woman had hinted and waited in vain for Lord Landell to ask her to dine, but that secretive gentleman had no wish to be saddled with such a responsibility on that particular evening. It was a night which held possibilities for him, and he wasn't at all sure the princess would consider it beneath his dignity to attend the ball masque, and impose herself upon him for that function as well.

So he was blind to her suggestive smiles and hints. For Willie, however, there was no easy means of escape. The Princess Dohbert was his social superior and immensely valuable to him in the way of introductions when he went to Paris or London, for although living here in retirement and economy she had hosts of friends further afield who were only too glad to do her services involving nothing more trying than giving entertainment to a dignified, well-mannered young man.

As a minor complication Landell, who was being ever so much more available to Willie than the latter had expected, offered him the loan of the royal salon for his party while offering himself in the modest role of guest. Then, then, was Willie's dilemma: Would the princess object to the Tancred whom she had met since that first unfortunate meeting, and would Landell object to the princess?

The noble peer, approached first, said he objected to nothing and nobody as long as his own wings were not clipped by obligations. The Princess Dohbert, all praise to her, would be Willie's guest, and so would the Tancred. "You'll like Mrs. Tancred," Willie said with cynical craft. "She's a beautiful woman and not too happy with her husband."

Lord Landell's heavy eyelids drooped.

"Women marry strange men," he observed. "And you? That pretty girl singing—what about her?"

Kindness from this left-handed father of his had brought out the sub-nuptial arrangement in Willie. Since the episode of Cecilia Bryant being trailed about town, Willie had treated Landell as something a little less than an equal. "You'll like Mrs. Tancred," he said stiffly. He knew that Landell had been hoping she was; that perhaps it was why the royal salon had been offered.

"No, of course not," his lordship agreed. "She won't be dining at all if she takes her singing seriously."

To this obvious truth Willie made no comment, nor did he say anything further about Clay.

The next thing was to approach the princess. She was quite capable of saying that if the Tancred—that questionable little lady!—were not struck off, she couldn't possibly come herself. But the old woman was wily. She had been won in one blow suit and she didn't want another; moreover, to her age and with her position, scandalous associations didn't matter at all unless she had some reason for pretending they did. Now that the first shock was over, she was immensely curious about Sophy, and so she gave her gracious permission.

But Willie did not ask Alan Brooke. That would have been too much for her to tackle.

The dinner, he told them all, was to be a burry up, scratch affair any way. "And the ball? Shall we go together, you and I—a couple of parsons, eh?" "We might have arranged to go as the 'Heavenly Twins' if only we'd thought about it in time," Willie said with cruel malice. "But as a matter of fact I'm fixed up for the ball with a lady. With three ladies, really." He smiled over his secret.

"Overdoing it, my lad," observed Landell, wondering who these three ladies could be, or if Willie was trying to be humorous in some obscure fashion.

So far Landell hadn't come straight out and asked Willie to present him to Cecilia Bryant. It would be a more striking feather in his cap if he showed her acquaintance without assistance from this bumptious young man. That would be a salutary lesson for Mr. William Ashford Moppet. Still, Lord Landell would have given much to know if Miss Bryant intended to go to the ball. If she didn't, he himself would much prefer to go to bed.

"I didn't know you were arranging a separate party for this casino. You'd be throwing out as something for Willie to catch at."

"Willie caught and returned it neatly."

"Indeed, sir, if it were a party I'd beg you to come along, but it's nothing that you wouldn't be in the least amused."

This last was certainly not true, but it served to oil the wheels of Willie's mind.

Such a lot of running about to be done that day. No one but himself knew how hard Willie Moppet worked, nor some of the interesting discoveries he made. First to the forist's where he learned from the young lady behind the counter—a great friend of his—just how many bouquets had been ordered for Clay and who ordered them. Next, of course, and one from the kind Mr. M. Baruch, who guessed that Clay was somebody of importance to Mrs. Moppet. And then there was that expensive one from Landell—dash it all!

Willie pondered over this. It surprised and angered him to the point where he thought of rejecting the loan of the salon for his dinner party. He thought of checking the evil old creature's Willie thought and thought until the forist's girl grew alarmed at the gloom of his expressions and won Willie to have given him offense in some way.

Rift Appears as Club Women Close
State Convention

BY KATE WEBBER.

Danville, Ill., May 20.—[Special.]—The Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, in final session here today, ran true to form and injected a little pepper into its four day feast of love and reason.

Just as the delegates were about to sing "Blest be the tie that binds," a rift appeared that jarred, if it did not threaten, the security of the Mrs. Charles J. Trainor of Chicago, retiring treasurer, had asked recindment of a resolution adopted last year whereby endorsement of legislative principles is referred back to individual clubs.

After considerable argument in which Mrs. Trainor spoke several times, Mrs. H. H. Briggs of Chicago demanded to hear whether "this organization is still democratic, or whether a car shall speak a dozen times and other delegates none."

There also were accusations of having saved this business until down state delegates, opposed to the resolution should have departed for home. The resolution finally was rescinded and a substitute presented by the legislative chairman, Mrs. John T. Mason of Aurora, adopted, referring indorsement of principles and measures to that department and to the board.

Invitations were read from Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, the association of commerce and others, inviting the state convention to Chicago next May. Motions also were made to be acted upon by the board, though it is considered likely Chicago will have the next convention.

New officers elected were Mrs. William H. Farrell of Chicago, first vice president; Mrs. David McLean of Chicago, treasurer, and Mrs. M. P. Kelly of Vicksburg, recording secretary. Mrs. J. M. Fowler, Mrs. C. G. Goodwin, Mrs. Samuel Horner, Mrs. William H. Farrell, Mrs. J. D. McKeon, and Mrs. Charles A. Caldwell were the Chicago women named to represent the federation at the general federation council at Grand Rapids, Mich., in June.

Health Officers
Meet as Medics
End Convention

Will Discuss Deaths from Poison Liquor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., May 20.—[Special.]—Sectional meetings in which the causes and cures of a wide range of diseases were discussed marked the conclusion of the seventy-eighth annual session of the American Medical Association today. As the physicians' five day convention ended, state and territorial health officers gathered for a three day conference on public health problems, including the increasing death rate from poison liquor.

The health officers will not debate the merits or demerits of prohibition, limiting their discussion to the effect of the prevailing qualities of bootleg liquor on the public health and estimating their conference in a public forum tomorrow, over which Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming will preside. Exhaustive reports of their observations and recommendations will be presented by a number of health officers.

The conference is the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the health officers of the United States public health service, and, as explained in the opening address by Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, the meetings are designed to secure cooperation between federal and state officials.

In the final meeting of the general surgery section of the medical association, Dr. John O. Rorer of Philadelphia declared that a certain way to keep from growing old is to take a laxative for a stomach ache. Dr. Rorer asserted that at least 98 percent of the deaths from appendicitis last year were caused by the administration of laxatives.

"This shows that the public is not aware of the danger of using laxatives in the presence of abdominal pain," said Dr. Rorer. "They must be informed if our mortality is to be greatly reduced."

Dr. E. R. Tauber of Cincinnati, O., in a paper read before the section on diseases of the skin, urged drastic legislation to curb the false and misleading statements used in advertising dangerous cosmetics.

"Cosmetics and fashion incite to a calm contempt for physical well-being," declared Dr. Tauber. "Their only goal is physical well-being. There is a waste of money for human health, more often open fraud and deception."

"The flapper, the middle aged ingenu, and the galling grandmother between them," he continued, "have done away with hair, clothes, corsets, and cotton stockings, but have more than rebelled the length of every toilet preparation corner in every department store and have placed tens of thousands of embryo cosmeticians in the world."

The "neighborhood baby contest" is a great obstacle in the conservative and sensible treatment of children, according to Dr. O. Anderson Aldrich of Winnetka, Ill., who read a paper based on his observations of "a widespread revolt against eating" among children to the section on children's diseases.

Dr. Aldrich declared that many mothers are urging children to eat against their will and thus are forming in the children a psychological barrier to the development of a normal appetite.

Methodist Pastors
Declare War on Race Betting Bill

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Churches of Illinois, the ministers' associations of various denominations and civic clubs will be immediately appealed to cooperate in requesting Gov. Len Small to veto the part-mutual racing bill which has passed both houses of the state legislature and now awaits his signature.

A similar protest will be made to the members of the Illinois senate to defeat the bill which has already passed the house of representatives providing for the repeal of the state prohibition law subject to a referendum.

Action concerning these two measures was taken yesterday afternoon at a specially called meeting of the Methodist ministers at the Chicago Temple. The necessity was called an "emergency" and "a part of a moral warfare" by Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the Chicago Temple, who moved the adoption of the protest which is to be sent to Gov. Small.

A committee consisting of the president, Dr. A. M. Pennewell, and the secretary, the Rev. C. D. King, and the public policy committee of which the Rev. Fred D. Stone is chairman, was instructed to appeal to other ministers, clubs, and influential business men and politicians to cooperate in opposing the two bills.

All ministers were requested to bring the matter before their congregations tomorrow and report the result to the governor.

Defining society news as "nice, polite information about nice, polite people and nice, polite occasions," Mrs. Mildred Jackson of The Chicago Tribune has charted the typical social life of one of these persons from the day the society column carries a paragraph announcing her birth, her mother's maiden name, the name of the hospital and, perhaps, her weight, to the day the photograph section carries a three column picture of her, a well established social dowager, listed as patroness of some imposing entertainment.

Here are the routine episodes which make the column. After the birth notice, perhaps three months later, comes the prominent baby's first picture. Jane Addams Shows War
Cost, Peace Profit.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
World affairs and Chicago society last night engaged the attention of visitors to the third annual Woman's World's fair, now in progress at the Coliseum.

Miss Jane Addams, pleading the cause of arbitration as a substitute for war, balanced the debit and credit column of the two activities during the 150 years preceding 1926 (there are no tables yet prepared for 1926).

"In that century and a half," said Miss Addams, "there were 18 big wars, costing two hundred and twelve trillions of dollars in money and fifteen and a half millions in men."

"In the same period there were 184 arbitrations with a total expenditure of only a few hundred thousands of dollars and with, of course, no loss of life."

Defining society news as "nice, polite information about nice, polite people and nice, polite occasions," Mrs. Mildred Jackson of The Chicago Tribune has charted the typical social life of one of these persons from the day the society column carries a paragraph announcing her birth, her mother's maiden name, the name of the hospital and, perhaps, her weight, to the day the photograph section carries a three column picture of her, a well established social dowager, listed as patroness of some imposing entertainment.

Let Husbands Air Their Grievances, Too, Advises Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There's one thing you have to admit about husbands: their grievances are not shared as wives are. I have a belief that if the male code were revised to permit of, say, a weekly outburst on their disappointments and dissatisfactions the wives' grievances would subside appreciably.

In one of the current periodicals there appears one of those rare male outbursts outlining a whole set of grievances one man had against his wife. In a week's reading supply it was the only male voice heard, as against half a dozen articles calling attention to male dissatisfactions and faults. There's bad psychology in this limiting matrimonial difficulties to one side of the house. Wives begin to think that the mere fact they are wives renders them peculiarly susceptible to all of the disappointments of married life. Which is not true, as one Henry J. known to us might tell us in a righteous indignation.

Henry J. may try to laugh off his crouch against married life with his remark that his wife "seems to think all of his friends have smallpox—they're that welcome," but the laughter is not very hearty and the sting of having to forgo all his former acquaintances for his wife's is a little too deep for humor.

And Henry J. is no novelty in the ranks of the wedded. It is a common complaint in the hearts of men, even if their lips do not speak it, that the chooses shall be welcome in his home. Though his taste in men and here are widely divergent, it does not matter. It is here that direct to shall smoke his cigars and partake of the provendered supplies. I could lay my hands at this moment on the man who would lead a revolt against this female tyranny, were one started. For years he had had to meet his old friends somewhere downtown, although he has a home he would be proud to show off. In the earlier days, when he dared it, his male companion was met with such frigid politeness and so much carping criticism followed his departure that he gave up the idea of expecting his wife

Onion in Sauces.

There is no doubt about the hygienic value of the onion, and even for those who do not welcome its flavor we may introduce it in such a way into a menu that they will not be conscious of its presence. To get the least bit of onion into a sauce or gravy we may cut an onion in two and merely scrape it in such a way as to add a bit of liquid seasoning—its juice. But since it is its juice that gives the odor to our hands or to our face if it should happen to strike them, we have to know how to handle it. A flat, coarse grater is a better thing to use, held in such a way that the onion juice will run off the corner.

A simple onion sauce that is good with potatoes may be made by chopping enough onions to make one or two cups, cooking it until tender in a little butter, either stirring it constantly so that it will not brown in the least, or covering it closely and letting it soften over a gentle fire. When it is tender, add one and one-half cups of milk and one cup of cream and boil for two minutes. Add pepper and salt to taste and, if you choose, sprinkle a little chopped parsley over it. If you want to make it an old-fashioned French sauce, you have but to pour it over the broken crumbs of bread. It is an old-fashioned sauce which was once greatly popular.

Another way to get that medium of onion which is so wholesome is to make the following sauce, which may be used with fish or with cauliflower or even other vegetables. Heat two tablespoons of butter in a small saucepan, put into it two tablespoons of young onion cut fine—the scallion—two tablespoons of green pepper cut fine, and two of celery.

Let these simmer for five minutes in such a way that neither the onion nor the vegetables will brown in the least. Mix with three cups of milk, two tablespoons of flour, let the whole rest for a few minutes, and add one cup of cold milk. Stir over the fire until the mixture thickens and add one-half teaspoon of salt, the white pepper which will come from one griddle of the pepper mill, several gratings of nutmeg, and four tablespoons of the best cheese, grated. If cauliflower is to be used with this, the cooked cauliflower and let the whole stand over the fire long enough for it to blend with the sauce.

SOX HURLERS FALL BENEATH MACKS' ATTACK

White Hose Routed in 12 to 5 Battle.

By EDWARD BURNS.
The Blankenship, Pop Jacobs, and George Connally yesterday attempted to pitch against the Philadelphia Athletics and each remained just long enough to get his feelings and his reputation badly lacerated.

In fleeting moments of consciousness last night none of the trio seemed to know what had happened, but all were ready to believe bulletins informing them the final score was Athletics, 12; Sox, 5.

Blankenship and Jacobs got their first inning, when the Macks made seven runs before a single put out had been made. Connally stepped in and stopped the march by virtue of a sacrifice and a double play. He had a good second inning, but in the third was beset by a swarm of flying baseballs. In this frame the Mackmen made a triple, a double, three singles, and a sacrifice produce four runs and bring about the retirement of the rubber armed sargeant.

Cole Halls Foo.

Bert Cole then took up the assignment and held the Philadelphia aggregation to one run in six innings. The White Sox pitchers didn't have a solitary all for what happened to them, because the Sox played a snappy strategy game in the field and made 19 hits for 13 bases.

Blankenship started the first inning disaster by walking Eddie Collins. Lamar singled, and the former Sox manager reached third. Cobb walked, hitting the bases. Simmons singled, scoring Collins and Lamar. Hale walked and Jacobs came in from the bull pen. Jacobs walked Cochran, forcing Cobb. Brannan popped one back of third which went for two bases, counting Simmons and Hale. Galloway doubled, scoring Cochran and Brannan. Then Jacobs went away. The Sox continued Connally's negative contribution was the walking of Collins, which made it two passes for Eddie in the six session.

Exit Connally.

Cochran, Brannan, and Collins with singles, Lamar with a double, and Galloway with a triple were the ones who brought ruin to Connally in the third inning and then relieved Falk in left field. He was up four times, made a run and a hit, and each time took a healthy cut at the ball.

The White Sox management yesterday announced that Johnny Mostil, former star center fielder, had been traded on the voluntary retired list. Johnny can be returned to the Sox roster on 30 days' application in the event he regains his health sufficiently to resume play.

ARE MITCHELL
[Amer. Press Photo.]
The British professional golfer, who has decided not to accompany the British Ryder cup team to the United States, after inspecting X-ray pictures, made another examination of Mitchell this morning and decided that he was not in condition to make the journey to the United States.

"I never have been more disappointed in my life than at being unable to go to America with the British golfing team," Mitchell said this afternoon, "but I cannot under the circumstances disregard medical advice."

The captaincy of the Ryder cup team is expected to devolve upon Ted Ray, who headed the British team against the Americans at Wentworth last year.

London dispatches Wednesday said Mitchell was understood to be suffering from acute dyspepsia and kidney trouble. He has not been well all year, although he has had great success in tournament play. He was chosen captain of the British cup team. His place is expected to be filled by Ernest Whitcombe, C. A. Whitcombe, A. G. Havers, Archie Compston, Fred Robson, Ted Ray, George Gadd and George Duncan.

WHISKY BOTTLE (EMPTY) AIMED AT UMP AS CUBS WIN

Kaufmann Hurls Mates to 7-5 Victory.

By IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Brooklyn, N. Y., May 20.—Amid more or less confusion caused by general dissatisfaction with the umpires in charge, the high riding, Chicago Cubs sneaked up and yanked the tail feathers out of your Uncle Wilbert's Robins again this afternoon. Due to two juicy innings, the Chicagoans gathered together quite an assortment of runs and runs were sufficient to make victory a certainty by 7 to 5 behind TONY KAUFMANN, the flinging of Tony Kaufmann.

The Cubs apparently made the game safer for the middle west when they turned on the hose in the fourth inning and soaked Jim Lefty Elliott, a fat boy from the Coast league, so hard he found it necessary to remove his two hundred odd pounds.

A local boy named Pitt managed to bring the miniature riot to a close after five runs had scored. Then Rube Ehrhardt came along to do a little flinging, and the Cubs collected two bargain runs in the eighth to make a victory a cinch.

Bottles Fly at McLaughlin.
The mock warfare carried on against the umpires was exciting, but not damaging. The usual 500 rough house artists were on hand, and they lost no time getting "on" McLaughlin, who was behind the plate. McLaughlin was the target for a lot of abuse, one badly became equally confused toward the end and had the Cubs running in circles because of a decision that halted a possible rally.

A triple by Flowers followed by a muffed fly ball let the Robins get away stylishly with one run in the second, but the one didn't look so large after the Chicagoans settled down in the fourth. Pete Scott started it with a double off the fat boy. Wilson scored him with a single. Stephenson hit, so did Grimm; Hartnett popped out, Beck walked. This filled the bases and two already home. Kaufmann crashed a hit to center, scoring Stephenson and Grimm and the fat boy was dead away. Beck counted the fifth and last run of the inning when Adams singled off Pitt.

Herman Gets Two Homers.
The Robins flew back into the ball game in the fifth when a couple scored on a ball knocked over the right field wall by Babe Herman, and the fat boy was dead away. Beck counted the fifth and last run of the inning when Adams singled off Pitt.

Riders End Training for Tribune Bicycle Derby

By WALTER ECKERSALL.
The Tribune's sixth annual Bicycle Derby in Grant park tomorrow morning will be opened with the race for novices. The order of events was arranged yesterday by Julian T. Fitzgerald, western representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America, and Referee Arthur Gardner. This Derby, like other promotional events conducted by THE TRIBUNE, is free to the public.

Contestants in the novice race must report for their numbers not later than 8:30 o'clock, as Starter Fitzgerald will fire his pistol at 9 o'clock to send the riders away on the first event of the day's program. No delays will be tolerated.

Class A Event Second.
The novice event will be followed by the race for class A riders. Then will come the races for class B and class C. The boys' race will come next and then the one for girls. The day's program will terminate with the fourteen mile handicap, feature of the Derby. All riders with the exception of the girls and a number of the boys will take part in the banner event of the program.

Harry S. Richards, assistant superintendent of the south park system, and Herbert G. Reynolds, assistant superintendent of playgrounds and sports, pronounce the course in excellent shape. The holes have been filled close to the pole and other precautions have been taken to avoid accidents or punctures. The wide walk along the west drive affords a place of vantage for the spectators.

The riders finished strenuous training yesterday and last night. The boulevards of the north, south and west side systems were crowded with bike riders taking their final workouts. Some will loosen up a bit this afternoon and evening, but the hard part of the training grind is over.

Riders Eye 1928 Olympic.
The training which the riders have done since the weather permitted and the experience of the race should place all in excellent shape for other big Derbies to be held this summer. These races will go a long way toward convincing some of the riders for the Olympic trials to be held next summer. Bicycle racing is part of the world's games and Chicago will make its bid for representation on the American No rider can compete who has not taken out his Amateur Bicycle League registration card. This can be secured from H. H. De Fries, 2846 West North avenue, phone Humboldt 0121.

TILDEN'S DRIVES UPSET LACOSTE IN TENNIS PLAY

Big Bill Shows Old Form; Wins, 6-4, 7-5.

By HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
PARIS, May 20.—The smashing, driving Bill Tilden of old was resurrected today at St. Cloud when in straight sets he easily defeated Rene Lacoste, 6-4, 7-5, thus avenging the beating the Frenchman gave him last year in the Davis cup finals. Bill's victory was followed by Francis Hunter's trouncing at the hands of Jean Borotra, the bounding Basque, who after tossing the first set by 6-0, won the next 4-6, won the next 6-4, making it one all for the first day of the Franco-American team match.

The largest crowd that ever saw a tennis match in France, 7,000, packed the "Stade Francois" and thrice became so excited that the play had to be stopped while the umpire begged for silence and order.

Tilden Popular With Crowd.
Tilden was most popular with the crowd, which was held breathless most of the time by his perfect placements and sizzling drives, which Lacoste was unable to handle. In the second set, when Bill was within two points of the set and match, he deliberately tossed away points following a raw decision, causing the play to be stopped while the fans roared, yelled, and cheered for ten minutes.

United States Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, high French officials, and many leading figures of society occupied the stands, while Mary Garden, who is winning new and greater fame in Paris at the Opera Comique in the "Resurrection," and who entertained for Tilden and Hunter last night, was an interested spectator.

Big Bill Stops Exodus.
Tilden's real superiority was not shown in the score. In the second set he had Lacoste, 5 to 1, needing two points for the set and match, when he became unmoved by the fans leaving the stands. Bill stopped the play and asked the umpire to request all to remain until the end. The American was erratic thereafter, driving to the net and out of bounds constantly, until Lacoste had made it 5-5. Then, in the eleventh game, on his own service, Tilden got three placements in a row, winning handsily. The twelfth game furnished the throng with the most brilliant baseline duel seen in many days, with Tilden winning the game, set, and match when he forced Lacoste to drive into the net twice.

For the first time this year Tilden's bullet service started working in the second set when he scored three and forced Lacoste to make weak returns often. The first set was a base line battle until after the fourth game, with the score 2 all, when Tilden began playing the net with deadly effect. In the second set Lacoste tried the same when he could; but most of the time Bill kept him hugging the base line and chasing from corner to corner. The point score for the first set was 42-34 and the second was 42-33.

Borotra Rally Sinks Hunter.
Borotra was off his form in the first set and Hunter took advantage of the numerous errors to win by 6-4. In the second set Borotra was more accurate with his placements, and this, combined with a neat net game, proved too much for Hunter, who tired in the last set under the dizzy placement shots to the corner and the net smashes.

TITLE HOPE FADES

JIM MALONEY.

Purple Gets 1 Hit; Michigan Wins, 5 to 0

College Baseball

The punch that first dashed Maloney was a left hook from a batsman, his undulating midriff about the middle of round three. Maloney had just missed a hook himself and was off balance and his muscles were loose, so the punch drilled him in the chest, his left knee came up in a posture of suffering.

It takes a fat boy like Maloney some time to steady himself after one of those stab punches, and he coldly dropped the fourth, following this with a right to the head. Maloney was slow with a right swing for the head and as they closed the referee dropped his gloves to forearm to block off a tattoo on the body. Then he whipped over a right cross to the chin and Maloney, trying to put a lot of ring between himself and the cold-eyed gent who was knocking him dizzy.

Sharkey came at him and Maloney tried to beat him to the punch with a left hook. Sharkey's head moved an inch and in the same movement he let fly a right cross. It caught Jimmy on the chin and unstepped him. A left hook to the chin followed and he went to his corner, over again, dumping Maloney on his back.

Bill Stope K. O. Connell.
Maloney took no count, but as he popped up with blood blinding his left eye, the bell jangled excitedly and he went to his corner, beaten but unconvinced. Sharkey began the fifth with a hard left hook to the chin. Sharkey ducked a swing and brought over a left to the back of the head, interposing his knee to the punch and as he went by, the punch and the tripping sent Maloney to the floor. He bobbed up and ran into a right, square on the chin—the knockout. Sharkey was hit for the punch and it banged Maloney with a stupefying impact, dropping him on his back near his own corner.

As the count began the half-conscious fish peddler floundered the air with his arms and legs, trying to right himself. At "six" he was on his side, groping for the ropes. The count stopped as he started to get up, but he fell back again and made another grab. This time he pulled himself up, hand over hand, and without enough strength left to put his arms up, staggered in Sharkey's general direction until he fell of his own weight.

Maloney's handlers rushed out and salvaged their man. Sharkey rushed over to shake his limp hand. Maloney downed his knees and Sharkey went back to his corner. The crowd rushed up to the ring. It was all over but they wanted to see the fellow who will fight Dempsey and Perny for the championship next fall.

Sharkey is taller than Maloney and he looks the bigger man although Jimmy weighed 202 pounds to Sharkey's 192.

EARLIER CHICAGO.
DEAR WAKE: In 1868, the pumping works were stationed in Bridgeport where the locks were, near the entrance to the Illinois canal. On a Saturday, newspapers announced that at 1 o'clock the locks would be opened and the pumping machinery set in motion, draining the river and reversing the natural flow of its current.

When water was pumped into the canal, a signal was given by the bell in the dome of the old court house provided in the canal, and they lost no time getting "on" McLaughlin, who was behind the plate. McLaughlin was the target for a lot of abuse, one badly became equally confused toward the end and had the Cubs running in circles because of a decision that halted a possible rally.

OKESON TO PICK GRID OFFICIALS FOR TEN SCHOOLS

Philadelphia, Pa., May 20.—(AP)—Walter R. Oakeson of Lehigh university tonight was named as the sole representative of ten large eastern colleges and universities in the selection of football officials for their important games.

The appointment was announced by Dr. James A. Habbitt of Haverford college, chairman of the central board of officials, at a conference with representatives of the ten institutions, Harvard, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Brown, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Navy, West Point and Yale.

Instead of the old method of each college having a manager present to select from a list of approved officials, Oakeson will serve for the ten institutions which have agreed to the arrangement.

The British professional golfer, who has decided not to accompany the British Ryder cup team to the United States, after inspecting X-ray pictures, made another examination of Mitchell this morning and decided that he was not in condition to make the journey to the United States.

"I never have been more disappointed in my life than at being unable to go to America with the British golfing team," Mitchell said this afternoon, "but I cannot under the circumstances disregard medical advice."

The captaincy of the Ryder cup team is expected to devolve upon Ted Ray, who headed the British team against the Americans at Wentworth last year.

London dispatches Wednesday said Mitchell was understood to be suffering from acute dyspepsia and kidney trouble. He has not been well all year, although he has had great success in tournament play. He was chosen captain of the British cup team. His place is expected to be filled by Ernest Whitcombe, C. A. Whitcombe, A. G. Havers, Archie Compston, Fred Robson, Ted Ray, George Gadd and George Duncan.

DR. LARRABEE WINS FEATURE RACE AT AURORA

Beats Rodrigo by Nose in Stretch Rally.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Aurora, Ill., May 20.—Dr. Larrabee doesn't often get into the limelight as the winner of a feature race on any track. The old doctor wins a heat now and then, usually in the seventh race, from selling plates, after most of the favorites are on their way home.

But a claiming stakes was down as the headliner this afternoon and it engaged some of the higher grade stakes here. At the last minute Martin Low, who had watched the doctor burn up the track the other morning in a workout, decided to give his horse a chance to run in the day's top race even if the players believed he should be running in the last race.

How Dr. Larrabee made good for his owner and won the day's feature was written into the turf records this afternoon. The doctor trailed a couple of ambitious pacemakers for the first mile, then came on to beat Rodrigo by a nose. It was a dingdong finish that would have done credit to a couple of high class stakes horses.

Paula Shay was an odds on favorite and Paula Satterthwaite her following by running in easy stride back of Cross Bow until they reached the turn into the stretch. Then the battle tightened up. Dr. Larrabee came with a rush; so did Rodrigo; and they soon put Cross Bow away and raced into the lead of Paula Shay. The odds on favorite was beaten then and there. However, it was a horse race between Dr. Larrabee and Rodrigo and they raced noses apart through the last half furlong and their finish was so close it took the official placing to separate them.

Alderman J. J. [Bathhouse John] Coughlin of Chicago, who has almost as many race horses trained as Harry Payne Whitney, watched his Appleblossom silks carried to victory for the first time in Illinois this year in the 2 year old race which served as the secondary feature. While the alderman has a lot of horses in training, his victories since his reentrance to the world of owners two years ago could almost be counted on the fingers of one hand.

193 Compete in Crystal Lake Spring Frolic

BY HARLAND ROHM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Crystal Lake, Ill., May 20.—It wasn't the warmest day of this cold and disagreeable spring at the Crystal Lake golf course yesterday, but under the conditions 193 contestants shot some of the "hottest" golf of the early season. Scores were high. A gale that brought a thunder storm before some of the golfers had finished saw to it that there were other distractions.

In the first place these 193 ordinarily staid Chicago business men roamed Crystal Lake's fine fairways and treacherous recently put dressed greens in the garb of mandarins and Mongolian handis, as colorful a crew as ever cut a throat or missed a two foot putt.

Breyerspaak Shoots Low Gross.

On the first tee a band of pseudo-Chinese, with coppers, saxophones, and other instruments of exquisite torture blared forth as the victim essayed to drive. On the third a ventriloquist's black baby made sarcastic and unnecessary remarks about the ability of the golfers. On the sixth green Oluspepe ground his organ while his trained monkey intercepted putts that were rolling straight for the hole and tossed the ball back at the discomfited golfer. Somewhere along the route a band of bagpipers blared and a couple of girls in ballet costumes (and fur coats) danced. Yes, golf was a difficult game at Crystal Lake yesterday.

Despite these tribulations Victor Breyerspaak shot an 87 for low gross for members and A. Norman of Bunker Hill scored 84 for low gross for guests. Harry Dunn grabbed the plate for low net for members with 94-27-69. A. E. Voss for guests, 92-27-69.

Low net foursome went to W. A. Roman, H. J. Corbett, E. R. Swift, and T. J. Monahan, whose scores, less their handicaps, totaled 307, and low gross foursome went to P. Perkins, E. Pease, F. Llewellyn and K. Llewellyn, with a total of 321.

Trinkhaus Also Wins Fries.

W. C. Trinkhaus, chairman of the spring frolic committee, copied one prize himself, the low gross for members on the four long holes with 19. Bob Wilson of Bob-o-Link netted the same prize for guests with the same score. Other prizes:

MIDLOTHIAN DERBY STARTS

Whether it rains, snows, or the sun shines today, the golf season in this district will be opened authoritatively this morning—the Derby. Probably a horseman's Derby means a race for three year old colts in Kentucky, but to a golfer there's only one Derby, the one at Midlothian.

More than 200 golfers will drive off from in front of Midlothian's pillared clubhouse this morning in the twenty-third annual renewal of this pioneer of two day golf events in the Chicago district. Not only the stars of Chicago's club compete, but those as far away as New York and Oakland, Cal. Today and tomorrow the Derby continues, a reunion of old friends of golf courses combined with tall shooting for the glittering array of solid silver shaving mugs, tea strainers, and other silver things golfers sometimes use.

Tam O'Shanter, one of the new clubs in the district located near Niles, will open the new clubhouse Saturday with a day of golf as Scotch as the name of the club. Alex Ayton, the pro, formerly assistant pro at Evanston, will lead the Scotch clan "wi his kilts and his pipes" for an attack on par.

North Shore will open its season's schedule today with several varieties of competition. Class A will shoot for low gross and classes B, C, and D for low net, while there will be three prizes in each class of the ball sweepstakes. The blind bogie for the Gay Rich trophy, postponed from last Saturday, will be held today.

Lincoln park will open its golf course Monday morning, providing the weather man calls off the spring's deluge.

The Illinois Seniors' Golf association will hold its fourth annual spring tournament at the Rockford Country club at Rockford, June 3 and 4. The previous three spring tournaments have been held at Peoria and from attendance at those it is expected a hundred Chicagoans will compete.

73 Qualify for Illinois Prep Finals

Champaign, Ill., May 20.—(Special.)—Seventy-three athletes, representing fifty-two high schools, qualified this afternoon for the finals of the thirty-third annual University of Illinois intercollegiate track and field meet, to be run off in Memorial stadium tomorrow morning.

Winners in the majority of events were given little competition and performance were consequently mediocre. Pete Rosen's mark of 179 feet in the javelin throw, four feet nine inches short of the Illinois state interscholastic record, was the best of the day. Beckmeyer of Carlyle, holder of the Illinois interscholastic record, 151-2-10, in the 440 yard run, easily won his heat in 1:52-3-10. Fortness of Sena High school of Chicago broad jumped 12 feet 5 1/2 inches, only three inches from the Illinois record, in his qualifying trial today.

KENNARD MEETS MARTONE IN CUBS PARK FIGHT BILL

Frankie Kennard, the south side welterweight, and Shorty Martone of Champaign, Ill., have been signed for the emergency bout to the world's junior welterweight championship fight between Musty Callahan and Spig Myers at the Cubs park on May 31. They will box six rounds and weigh 145 pounds. Mullin has secured permission from the boxing commission to put this contest on fifteen minutes in advance of the first regularly scheduled contest. This will be done so that all fans will be in their seats before the first preliminary. Matching of Kennard and Martone completes the card.

Callahan and Myers met in the Coliseum during the winter and Myers was given the decision in one of the best fights of the indoor season. All fighters are working at the Mullen gymnasium.

Eddie Shea is picked to stop Ray Ryckell of the stock yards at the White City on Monday night. At least this is the way the bets are being placed by those who wager on the results of such contests. The principals in the main bout and those in the preliminaries will wind up preparations today.

73 Quality for Illinois Prep Finals

Champaign, Ill., May 20.—(Special.)—Seventy-three athletes, representing fifty-two high schools, qualified this afternoon for the finals of the thirty-third annual University of Illinois intercollegiate track and field meet, to be run off in Memorial stadium tomorrow morning.

Fortness of Sena High school of Chicago broad jumped 12 feet 5 1/2 inches, only three inches from the Illinois record, in his qualifying trial today.

Lightning Mars Elmer's Joy in Radio Evening

But Many Programs Win
His Praise.

By ELMER DOUGLASS.
First, the usurping broadcasting station was STATIO, the program being lightning flashes of such intensity between 7:30 and 8 that my set practically was useless.

For the interest of nearby station listeners, mention is made of the creditable playing of the Moszkowsky suite, complete, by the Trianon ensemble, WMBB, 7; the Andante ("Surprise") movement from Haydn's "Surprise" symphony, by the Goldman band, New York, WLBB, 7:15; and the special studio service for a safe journey by aviator Capt. Charles Lindbergh, WBBH, 7:30.

From 8:30 on, programs developed progressively into intense interest. The concert by the Women's String quartet, with William O'Connor, tenor soloist, WLS, 8:30 to 9:35, was, so far as the quartet is concerned, abstract music, choice in selections, and brilliant, played by the Trianon ensemble, WMBB, 7; the Andante ("Surprise") movement from Haydn's "Surprise" symphony, by the Goldman band, New York, WLBB, 7:15; and the special studio service for a safe journey by aviator Capt. Charles Lindbergh, WBBH, 7:30.

Now, the gem of the evening, a recital by Ennio Bolonini, an Argentine cellist, WBBH, 9:35 to 10:45. Selections were both familiar and unfamiliar; his touch and tone firm, but feathery.

He offers something altogether new in that he plays with absolute deliberation, defying, making laws of his own as to interpretation.

STATE LAUNCHES INQUIRY INTO SECRET SOCIETY

The state securities commission yesterday started an investigation into the Decimo Club, Inc., a fast growing society whose members are attracting attention in business circles throughout the country.

At a hearing in the county building John J. Miller, organizer for the secret society in the Chicago district, was questioned by Assistant Attorney General George A. Dierksen, Mortimer C. Grover, manager of the Investors' Protective bureau, and James H. Mahoney of the securities department of the secretary of state's office. No decision was reached, Mr. Dierksen commented.

"Although the Decimo Club, Inc., is not within the jurisdiction of the commissioner, being a non-profit and non-stock organization, yet it may be that the club is so tied up with commercial organizations that its certificates of membership would be tantamount to securities."

Mr. Miller said the purpose of the club, which has 50,000 members, 5,000 in Chicago, is to advance the financial welfare of its members by finding jobs in which its members will be happy.

Male Chorus to Give Program from W-G-N

AN hour, and fifteen minutes of excellent choral music will be offered radio listeners tonight by the Male Chorus of the W-G-N station on the Drake hotel, when the program from the Pennsylvania Male chorus is presented. The chorus is directed by Mark Love, well known to W-G-N listeners for his fine singing and excellent work as director of the W-G-N vocal group.

Tonight W-G-N again takes up the thread of its series of "Famous Fights of All Time" when the battle between Pancho Villa, little Filipino, and Jimmy Wilde, English brawler, for the flyweight championship of the world will be reproduced on the air. Quin Ryan will be at the microphone describing the crowds at the battle.

Every night W-G-N is broadcasting three questions once during the Old Fashioned Almanack, 6:50 to 7 o'clock, and again immediately following "Sam 'n' Henry" at 10:10 o'clock. The questions are answered the following morning on the radio page of The Tribune.

POPULATION RISE STIRS JAPAN TO EYE BIRTH CURB

TOKIO, Japan, May 20.—Simultaneously with the news that Germany officially is negotiating with the powers for reopening the league of nations mandate question comes the official statement from the Japanese home office that Japan's population last year increased almost 1,000,000. This announcement again has attracted the attention of the publicists to the ever looming danger of a food shortage, which now is such that two successive bad crops would bring Japan to the point of a nationwide famine. For the first time high officials of the government openly suggest birth control as one way out.

HOLD THREE MEN, THREE WOMEN IN WOMAN'S MURDER

Three men and three women were held yesterday by the police investigating the killing of Miss Evelyn La Grande, 39, in her flat at 4450 Hazel avenue Thursday night. They are Isadore (Nigger) Goldberg, known to the police as a keeper of disorderly houses; Ray Brown and Vincent Carbone, both of 301 Lake street; Frieda La Grande, a sister of the slain woman; Gladys Carbone, who lived in the flat with the sisters, and Irene Schultz of the Metropole hotel.

George La Grande, a brother of Evelyn, testified at the inquest yesterday that she had told him of threats made against her by Goldberg. The latter, with Brown and Carbone, were arrested in a raid at 2847 Washington boulevard. Testimony indicated that the flat was a disorderly resort.

DEPICT WOLFRUM BEFORE JURY IN OPPOSITE ROLES

Avery Wolfrum, former principal of the Palmer school, sat in Chief Justice William J. Lindsay's court yesterday and heard himself pictured to the jury first by one of the prosecutors as a man making evil suggestions to the little girl pupils and later by his own attorney as the victim of a conspiracy by disgruntled parents. The school is located in West Albany, N. Y.

Starting Monday morning the jury is to hear two girl witnesses, one of them 12, the other 14, tell that improper suggestions were made to them by their principal.

Wolfrum blushed as Assistant State Attorney Harold Levy in his opening statement outlined to the jury late in the afternoon the testimony expected to come from those two girls.

Attorney J. Benedict Short in behalf of Wolfrum told the jury that he would show that because his client refused to accede to the demands of certain parents in the appointment of an assistant superintendent, that the parents had conspired against him. Six of the jurors are fathers.

DESPAIRED OF EVER HAVING GOOD COMPLEXION

Pimples relieved after trying well known remedy

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 31.—"My skin had been very clear up to a while ago when blackheads and pimples developed. They spread rapidly and I was terribly annoyed. I used several suggested remedies without good results, and was disgusted and just ready to give up hope of ever having a good complexion again when I saw one of your advertisements. At the same time a friend recommended Resinol Soap and Ointment so I began to use them. After a few applications my trouble was relieved, and I now keep these products always on hand. They are so soothing and refreshing and I find the ointment so good for the scalp and for chapped hands." (Signed) Miss Carmel De Felice, E. 1723 Third Avenue.

STRENGTH APPEARED IN THE HOG MARKET.

Strength appeared in the hog market yesterday when all packers bought for numbers as supplies fell short of a week ago. Arrivals for the week were 20,000 smaller than last week. Extreme top moved up 5c at $10.10, with general average unchanged at $9.70, comparing with a top of $10.00 and average of $9.55 the previous Friday.

Market improved as the day progressed, closing at the high point, with few of the 6,000 hogs left in the pens being in first hands. Outside demand was the largest since Monday. Doves of mixed butchers, averaging 235 lbs, were costing around $9.50, with 200 lb. doves at $9.70, and 215 lb. mixed butchers $9.80.

The moderately small Friday run of 3,000 cattle met early clearance at $10.00. Quality, however, was lacking and best available stopped at $12.10, averaging 1,188 lbs. Top the fifth day of last week dropped to $11.45. Steers are strong with last week's close. Cows and strong, with few butchers are finishing at the highest level of the year. A reaction in the calf market elevated selected weaners to $12.50. Little change was noted in stockers and feeders.

LAMBS DECLINE AGAIN.

Lambs broke 16,500 further under excessive supplies, and continued showing little fullness, with closing prices being 75c to $1.00 under a week earlier. Native springers reached $17.00, best from the coast state stopping at $18.75 yesterday. Lambs without fleeces are finishing fully $1.00 under a week earlier. Aged sheep show losses of 50c to $1.00 for the week.
